HOPE LAST GAME OF SEASON WILL REMOVE DEFICIT

Clinton Legion Coming to Ring Down Curtain on Game

Weather permitting, Dixon's American Legion football team will wind up the season and play off the scoreless tie with the Clinton Legion crew Sunday afternoon at Brown Field. On Sunday, Nov. 8, playing in sub-zero weather on a snow-covered field the Dixonites held Clinton to a scoreless tie and for several weeks fans have been asking for a return engagement. Previously to that time Clinton defeated Dixon on the home lot by a score of 23 to 0.

Changes which have been made led the management to believe that Clinton can be defeated and the Iowans claim of having not met defeat here in three seasons has led to the booking of Beldings' gladiators for the grand finale. The Dixon team has been going through hard practice for two weeks getting in readiness for the final curtain, and without a cripple on the squad Manager Miller and Coach Dee are confident of a victory Sunday.

Team is Stronger.

There will be some strengthening of the weak positions and the fans can feel that they are to be given a treat Sunday. The local management has booked only the best teams this season and weather conditions have had a telling effect on the crowds and treasury as well. There is a deficiency in the treasury at present and it is hoped that Sunday's game will see a crowd present in sufficient numbers to clear the list of debts. Clinton promises to bring a big delegation of fans over into Illinois for their final game of the season. It is expected that the visitors will be represented by a delegation of about 500 and Dixon should turn out equally strong for the last battle.

The Rock Island Independents management tried to book Sunday's game with either Dixon or Clinton and Managers Burlingame and Miller both turned down the Pro club. Dixon and Clinton are rivals of long standing and games between the two are always attractive to the fans. Clinton is sparing no effort to have their most powerful lineup ready for action Sunday and have bright hopes of a victory. Dixon has been humiliated by defeat at the hands of the Iowans for the past two seasons and are determined to change the result.

POPE'S SUPPORT OF PROHIBITION ASKED IN LETTER

"Attitude of So Many Catholics" Cited to Pontiff

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—An appeal to Pope Pius for moral support of "civil authority" in the United States was made public today by the United Committee for Prohibition Enforcement, made up of a number of Catholic and Protestant reform organizations.

In a letter to the Vatican the chairman of the committee, Clinton N. Howard, referred both to prohibition and to the Ku Klux Klan. He said the appeal had been "authorized and approved" by the committee which yesterday sent to the White House a communication directly appealing to President Coolidge for better prohibition enforcement.

The letter addressed to Pope Pius declared there had been many evidences of the pointiff's appreciation of American idealism. Mr. Howard continued that "as a friend of Catholics" he desired to call attention to the attitude of "so many Catholics" toward prohibition. This attitude he said "had created a great deal of opposition to the Catholic church and did much to call into existence the Ku Klux Klan."

Civil Music Association Concert Friday Evening

The next attraction in the course given this winter by the Dixon Civic Music association will be a concert by Herbert Gould, baritone, and Vera Topte, cellist, next Friday evening, Dec. 11th, at 8 o'clock at the Family Theater. Both of these artists are figures of national fame and success and will give Dixonites an evening of unalloyed pleasure.

LOVE NOTES IN MILK BOTTLES; SUIT IS FILED

Convinced Jury Woman Alienated Love of Milkman

Janesville, Dec. 4—Love notes left in milk bottles and addressed to the regular driver, but collected instead by a substitute, convinced a jury in Rock county court that Mrs. Lillian Bays, wife of a local factory owner, was guilty of alienating the affections of William R. Wood, driver for a local dairy company. The jury awarded Mrs. Wood, complainant in the suit, damages of $1,000. She entered suit for $10,000.

Mrs. Bays' attorneys demanded a new trial or appeal immediately after the verdict was read, charging blackmail.

Jurors Appear Convinced.

Mrs. Bays is the wife of Peter Bays, owenr of a local factory, manufacturing Greek cheese. Mr. Bays' firm was declared bankrupt a year ago.

Evidence introduced indicated that Mrs. Bays and Woods had been intimate for a considerable period previous to the discovery of the "love notes."

The jurors deliberated three hours before arriving at a verdict, the first ballot, according to rumors, standing seven to five for conviction.

BOULDER, COLO. MINE IS SCENE OF SERIOUS FIRE

Heavy Smoke is Pouring From Shaft; Fear Men are Dead

Boulder, Colo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Between 40 and 45 men were imprisoned in the Cardinal Tunnel, a property worked by the Fairview Mining Co., by a fire that broke out in the workings early today. The mine is located 20 miles west of here.

Six rescue crews, equipped with pulmotors and other equipment, left here for the scene.

Mine officials said they feared the imprisoned men were unconscious from the heavy smoke that is pouring from the mouth of the tunnel and that has prevented workers, who were not equipped with masks, entering the workings.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Approximately twenty-five miners were entrapped by the fire in the gold mine of the Fierview Mining Co., near Nederland, in the opinion of J. E. Bergren, president of the company which has its offices here.

The men, he believed, have a good chance of being saved as they were working on the 800 foot level of the main tunnel. The fire started in the compresser room at the main tunnel portal and has destroyed the compressor and air fan system.

The reports which Bergren received before noon indicated that the fire had been brought under control.

BANKERS CALLED IN BOOZE TRIAL AT IOWA CAPITAL

Expected to Testify as to Payment of the Liquor Money

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 4—(AP)—Peoria and Des Moines bankers through whose banks various defendants in the government's charge of conspiracy to defeat the prohibition law are alleged to have carried on financial transactions, which involved the money alleged to have been paid for alcohol shipped from Peoria to this city, were the next witnesses scheduled to be heard in federal court here this afternoon.

David Norton and L. H. Moroney of the State Trust & Savings Bank of Peoria, Harold Harsh of the First National Bank of that city and R. J. Belsey of the Peoria Home Savings & State Bank are the out of town bankers whom the prosecution expects to call to testify.

This morning's testimony had to do with the alleged loading of the alcohol into a car at Peoria and tracing it to Des Moines. A. C. Larkin, engine foreman for the Peoria & Peking Union Railway, and W. C. Leitner, a freight agent for the Rock Island at Peoria, were among the witnesses who testified.

Bovey Gets Promotion and Will Move to Iowa

The many Dixon friends of Frank Bovey will be pleased to learn of a promotion which he has gained with the Pinkerton Tobacco Co. He has been division salesman in this territory and has been notified that he has been made supervisor over the territory adjacent to Cedar Rapids, Ia. Mr. Bovey will take charge of his new position the first of the year and his family will probably move to Cedar Rapids about the middle of January.

Man Died Shortly After His Wife Divorced Him

Chicago, Dec. 4—(AP)—Two hours before the death of her husband, Walter Miekiwicz, a divorce from him was obtained by Mrs. Stella Miekiwicz, on grounds of cruelty. She learned of the death after the decree was signed. Then remorseful, she asked to make funeral arrangements. But his relatives refused and the divorce judge, to whom she appealed, upheld them.

Woman Passerby Shot in New York Robbery Today

New York, Dec. 4—(AP)—A woman passerby was shot today during a pistol fight between the paymaster of the Standard Oil Co., plant on the East River, Manhattan and three robbers who escaped with the $5,500 payroll.

FOURTH MEMBER OF FAMILY DIES UNKNOWN CAUSE

Mystery Surrounds E. St. Louis Deaths; Plan Autopsy

East St. Louis, Ill., Dec. 4—(AP)—A mysterious poison, which physicians and investigators have been unable to identify, claimed its fourth victim and the third member of one family with the death in a local hospital today of Miss Mildred Kuhlman, 21 of Maryville, Ill.

Miss Kuhlman's death followed that of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kuhlman, October 24, and November 6, respectively.

The Kuhlman family, including a 12 year old son, Orville, were taken ill in October from what physicians at first believed to be the result of drinking milk from cows that had eaten white snake root weed, a poisonous plant. John McGinnis, a neighbor, was similarly stricken and died.

An examination of Mrs. Kuhlman's stomach contents at St. Louis University medical college revealed no trace of poison. An autopsy was ordered on the body of Mildred Kuhlman in a further effort to solve the mystery.

J. A. VALENTINE, POLO PIONEER. DIED THIS MORN

Resident of Ogle Co. Since 1855 Called by His Maker

(Telegraph Special Service)

Polo, Dec. 4—J. A. Valentine, a pioneer resident of Polo, passed away at 4 o'clock this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John Sweet. Mr. Valentine had been ailing for the past few months, but had been confined only since last Tuesday, when he was seized with an attack of neuphritis which caused his death. The deceased was born in Union county, Pa., in March 1850 and came to Ogle county in 1855, having resided here every since. In 1873 he was united in marriage to Sidney Pike, who survives him. Two daughters, Mrs. Maude Sweet and Mrs. Pearl Shrader of Polo; one son, C. E. Valentine of Rochelle; three brothers, W. D. Valentine of Spokane, Wash., L. H. Valentine of Aurora and C. F. Valentine of Mineral Springs, Colo.; and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Blair of San Diego, Cal., and Mrs. B. W. Good of Polo also survive. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Lutheran church, Rev. D. P. Bair officiating and with interment in Fairmount cemetery.

"Heir at Large" Will be Shown as Dramatic Piece

Chicago, Dec. 4—(AP)—"An Heir at Large," a serial cartoon by John McCutcheon which appeared in the Chicago Tribune a year or so ago, has been dramatized by Mary Aldis, for a premiere at the Good Man Memorial Theater at the Art Institute.

The adaption, taking its place with books written from plays and dramatics taken from literature, will be staged chiefly in black and white under the direction of Mr. McCutcheon, as though an animated cartoon was being unreeled. This effect is to be produced by "trick" lighting.

The story told of a young man inheriting a huge fortune unknown to the daughter of a mill director, whom he courted, and of an ambitious mother who scorned him, unaware that he was the controlling stockholder in their mills. He eventually loved the girl's cousin, whom he found working at a small salary in the mills and went through various adventures and romantic experiences.

CHARITABLE WORK OF COMMUNITY IS WELL CONDUCTED

Associated Charities Has Accomplished Great Service

As the holiday season approaches the thought of giving is supreme in every heart. To give to the near ones and dear ones is the first thought and then follows the realization of the real meaning of Christmas and what He would do were He to visit the earth. He would care for the poor and hungry and sick and for the little ones. "Love thy neighbor as thyself", simplifies the explanation. The Associated Charities does a great work throughout the entire year and at Christmas time the calls are doubled. If you desire to do good and help others communicate with Mrs. Joseph McCleary, Louis Pitcher or Thomas Young of the Associated Charities or any of the other members and they will direct your efforts. The association was organized by the Lee County Salvation Advisory Board in 1922, for the purpose of caring for local charity and social service work in Dixon.

Louis Pitcher, Mrs. McCleary, Adjt. Kline, in charge of the Home Service Work of the Salvation Army for twenty years, and Thos. Young of Dixon are a few of the people working in this cause.

Great Work in 1924

Some thing of the work accomplished by the Associated Charities during the year 1924 may be gathered from the report given below:

Used garments given to worthy poor—4,000.

New garments given to worthy poor—1,500.

Shoes, new and worn, given to worthy poor, pairs—300.

Beds and cots given to worthy poor—12.

Sewing machines given to worthy poor—3.

Pieces of bedding to worthy poor —100.

In addition, washing machines, baby cabs, baby clothes, crutches, stoves and furniture of various kinds have been distributed.

To Thanksgiving and Christmas baskets of provisions given——105.

Medical, dental and surgical work has been secured for those, especially children, unable to pay for it.

Hospital and treatments—18.

Optical cases—15.

Mrs. McCleary has visited 125 homes in social service work.

It is well to let the people of Dixon and vicinity know something of the great work being accomplished in Dixon and vicinity.

The funds for doing this work have been supplied by the Advisory Board from the annual Home Service Appeal conducted by the Dixon Elks for the Salvation Army.

Dredging of Missouri Sought by Six States

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Mapping of a definite campaign to obtain federal aid through the river and harbors appropriations of congress, or by other means, to make the Missouri river navigable as far north as South Dakota, was the object of a meeting here today of representatives of six states.

Those attending formed the executive committee of the assication and represented Iowa, South Dakota, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and Nebraska.

Congressman Lost Appeal on Dry Law Conviction

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 4—(AP)—The application for a rehearing in the case of Congressman J. W. Langley, of Kentucky, convicted on charges of having conspired to violate the Volstead law was denied by the United States circuit court of appeals here today. Langley is under sentence of two years in the Atlanta Penitentiary.

CONGRESSIONAL LEADERS GETTING READY FOR WORK

Republicans Still Undetermined on LaFollette Issue

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—With the senate republican conference called for tomorrow and the LaFollette issue still troubling party leaders, the pre-convening atmosphere of the new congress today was keying up for the gavel fall on Monday.

Republican leaders in the senate still faced an uncertain situation in their efforts to have the party conference tomorrow recognize, without issue, the republicanism of Senator-elect LaFollette of Wisconsin. Senator Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is one of a number of senators apparently not yet convinced that the plan of Senator Curtis of Kansas, the majority floor leader, and other party leaders to treat the Wisconsin senator as a party regular is warranted by his speeches in his recent campaign.

Speeches Scrutinized

Senator LaFollette, whose campaign utterances are regarded by some senators as constituting attacks on the republican party, has declined to indicate whether he purposes to accept the invitation to attend the conference tomorrow.

In the session ahead the question of amendment of the senate rules to prevent filibusters is one that probably will at least occupy many hours of debate and Vice President Dawes already is on the ground, prepared to carry forward his fight for such a change.

The house republican leaders were perfecting plans today to have the house get down to work on the tax reduction bill immediately after the reading of the President's message on the second day. The program for the opening day calls for organization and the receipt of the report on the tax bill.

An Aledo Bachelor Attacks Niece Then Tries to Suicide

Davenport, Iowa, Dec. 4—(AP)—Miss Lena White, 32, whose skull was split yesterday by a hatchet yielded by her uncle, Perry Wilson, 67, at the Wilson home in Aledo, Illinois, is still living today although slight hopes are held for her recovery. Wilson, who slashed his throat in an attempt at suicide, may recover. Both are in a hospital here.

Insane jealousy is blamed today for Wilson's act. He attacked Miss White and her twin sister, Mrs. Harry Weirather, when they went to his home to take away furniture which belonged to them. Mrs. Weirather was slashed on the arm by Wilson as she jumped through a window.

Miss White had been a housekeeper for Wilson, who is a bachelor, but left him three week ago.

Two State Hospital Patients Pass Away

Two female patients at the Dixon state hospital passed away early this morning. Mrs. Mamie O'Brien, who suffered a fracture of the hip some time ago died early this morning and the body was removed to the Jones funeral home where an inquest will be conducted by Coroner F. M. Banker Saturday morning at 9:30. The remains will be sent to Chicago for interment.

Miss Emily Habensak passed away at the institution early this morning and the remains were sent to Joliet this afternoon for burial.

The remains of Miss Rose Levin, Miss Nina Zbid and Isadore Pritiken, all hospital patients, have been sent to Chicago for interment.

Three Lives Lost in Storm Along Atlantic

New York, Dec. 4—(AP)—The force of the storm that raged yesterday along the coasts of New York, New Jersey and New England and lashed the southern Atlantic coast earlier in the week was spent today. Three lives were lost, several persons were injured and severe property damage was done in storm area.

TEXAS MUDDLE WAITS DECISION OF BOOK BOARD

Commission to Decide Legality of Action of Subs

Austin, Tex., Dec. 4—(AP)—Announcement by the state text book commission whether it approves the action of its sub-committee in executing $600,000 in contracts with the American Book Company of Cincinnati was awaited today. The subcommittee, of which Governor Miriam A. Ferguson is chairman, made the contracts without the "advice and consent of the attorney general."

A decision by the commission was looked forward to as a possible influence on the future relations between the governor and Attorney General, Dan Moody, who have been at odds since the start of the recent highway controversy and subsequent demands for a special session of the legislature.

The contract was questioned on the grounds that it was executed without the required anti-trust affidavit from the book company. The affidavit however, later was supplied, but the return to the company of a $2,500 deposit is being withheld pending an opinion from the attorney general. He disapproved the adjustment of the belated affidavit.

Alleged Fur Robbers of Kalamazoo Store Taken

Michigan City, Ind., Dec. 4—(AP)—Two men alleged to have robbed a Kalamazoo store last night were arrested early this morning. Goods valued at $3,000 consisting of 12 fur coats, 12 dresses and other womens wear was in the touring car in which they were arrested here.

The men, who gave their names as Henry Rinehart, 55, salesman of Streator, Ill., and Harry Dalton, 26, a cook, St. Paul, Minn., waived arraignment and went to Kalamazoo with a deputy sheriff of that city.

KENTUCKY AND MISSISSIPPI IN PATH OF STORM

Extent of Damage Not Known Because of Wire Disorders

Yazoo City, Miss., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Two negro women were killed and between 20 and 30 persons were injured when a tornado dipped into the city from the northwest early today, blowing down about 50 homes and causing a property loss estimated at more than a quarter of a million dollars.

At least 50 homes were demolished and a large number of others badly damaged while telephone and telegraph communication was destroyed for several hours.

The situation was aggravated by a deluge of rain that flooded the streets and hindered search in the wreckage.

The home of C. H. Williams, brother of former Senator John Sharp Williams, was damaged. Mrs. Williams escaped death in a miraculous manner when a himney fell on the bed upon which she was sleeping.

KENTUCKY TOWN HIT.

Kuttawa, Ky., Dec. 4—A wind storm of tornado proportions struck Lyons county this morning, blowing down several homes, unroofing numerous buildings and uprooting trees and blowing down telegraph lines. No one was injured in so far as is learned. Damage amounted ot several thousand dollars.

Radio Inventor is Plaintiff in Suit for Sixty Millions

Boston Dec. 4—(AP)—Damages of $60,000,000 are asked in a bill of complaint filed in federal court here today by R. A. Fessenden of Newton, inventor and scientist in which he charges eight coroporations doing a national and international business, with establishing a monopoly. The suit is brought, counsel for Mr. Fessenden explained under the provision of the Sherman-Anti-Trust Act and the Clayton Act.

Fessenden, who lists 38 patents, largely concerned with radio appliances held by him, asserts that the General Electric Company, the Radio Corporation of America, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the Western Electric Company Inc., the United Fruit Company, the Wireless Specialty Apparatus Co., the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing Co., and the United Radio Telegraph Co., have formed a combination in restraint of trade through which he has suffered damages amounting to $20,000,000. Under the provisions of the federal law, it is claimed, he may collect thrice that amount.

Banning is Offered U. S. Deputy's Post

George Banning, chief deputy sheriff under Sheriff S. N. Dodson of Ogle County, and well knewn in Dixon, has been selected to serve under Major Yellowly, United States Prohibition Commissioner of this district. Mr. Banning was called to Chicago yesterday and tendered the position of deputy prohibition agent, working out of the Chicago office.

"I have not accepted the position which has been offered me," the popular deputy stated this morning. "It is true that I spent yesterday in Chicago where I was called to confer with government prohibition officials and was tendered a deputyship. I have two weeks to consider the matter, however, and have not decided whether or not I will accept the appointment."

Boys Have Fine Show of Boxes They've Made

The boys of Miss Clara Cleaver's room, the "Opportunity room" of the South Central school, ranging in ages from 11 to 15 years, are justly proud of their exhibit of boxes at the Dixon Public Library. This display made under the direction of their teachers, Miss Cleaver and Miss Guernsey, the supervisor of art in the schools, is m supervisor of art in the schools is most comprehensive and interesting. The designs on the boxes are original with the boys, who exhibit considerable skill in the painting and carving and in the clever and accurate workmanship in the completed boxes. The display is worth the effort of a trip to the Library.

Gun-Toters Indicted by Alton Grand Jurors

Alton—The first indictment for carrying concealed firearms since passage of the new state law imposing a heavy penalty was returned yesterday among 14 true bills by the city court grand jury. Police are pushing an active campaign against "gun toters."

RHINELANDER'S CASE TO JURY THIS MORNING

Jurors Must Answer Seven Questions from Evidence

White Plain, N. Y., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The suit for annulment of marriage brought by the wealthy young Leonard Kip Rhinelander against his part negro wife, Alice Beatrice Jones, went to the jury shortly before noon today.

Out of the mass of testimony, much of its conflicting, taken during the three weeks of trial, the jurymen were charged by Justice Morschauser to find answers to seven questions propounded to it. On the jury's findings on these questions will be based the justice's decision whether or not an annulment shall be granted. If granted, his decision will act merely as an interlocutary decree, to be finally reviewed and passed upon by the next regular special term of West Chester county supreme court.

Make Further Attempt to Discredit Pedigo

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 4—(AP)—Further attempts to discredit the testimony by Lawrence Pedigo, former henchman of John Looney in the latter's alleged vice reign in Rock Island in 1922, were made by Defense Attorneys in cross examination of the witness again today. Pedigo on cross examination yesterday, admitted he had testified falsely at a conspiracy trial in Rock Island in 1923 in which he, former Police Chief Tom Cox and Mayor Harry Schriver were the defendants and were convicted. He asserted that the testimony given here which differed from that at the Rock Island trial was true and his former story false.

Attorney O. O. Askren of New Mexico, today continued reading excepts from Pedigo's testimony in the 1923 conspiracy case and attempted to convince the jury that the witness' testimony here which is different, is not to be believed. Pedigo denies he has been promised immunity by the state for his testimony and insists all he wants to do by his statements is convict the guilty man and free the others.

CARROLL S. PAGE, VERMONT LEADER, DIED LAST NIGHT

Gave Over Half a Century of Service to State, Nation

Hyde Park, Vt., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Former U. S. Senator Carroll S. Page, 82, a prominent figure in Vermont's political history is dead. He was stricken with paralysis, Nov. 24, and died last night.

Senator Page was the oldest member of the United States Senate in point of years, although not of service. He was born Jan. 10, 1843, and the senior among Senators, in age, of Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican leader; Senator Dillingham, his colleague, and Senator Nelson, of Minnesota, all of whom were only a few months younger.

In Vermont's political history, Senator Page was a prominent figure. For over half a century he had given of his time and talents to public service, his state and the nation. He served both in the state and national legislatures, ar Governor of Vermont from 1890 to 1892, and was a stalwart among republican leaders produced by New England, having occupied many positions of party trust and responsibility.

Activities of Senator Page in the Senate largely were agricultural, naval and financial. Entering the Senate upon election in 1908 to fill a vacancy caused by the death of Senator Proctor, he was assigned to the Senate agriculture committee and was an active members until his retirement. He was interested greatly in agricultural affairs, especially those pertaining to the livestock and dairy industry. This, doubtless, resulted from his business, wholesale trade in raw calfskins. At one time Senator Page was credited with being the largest calfskin dealer in the world—a business which, it is said, he bought from his father when a minor and developed through connections all over the world.

Helped Naval Policy.

As a member and later as chairman of the Senate naval affairs committee, Senator Page also was prominent in development of the nation's naval policy and upbuilding during the last two decades. He was a strong advocate of naval expansion, aligned with the "big navy" group in Congress and spoke frequently in support of naval increases.

Senator Page was twice re-elected to the Senate, in 1010 and 1916, his final term expiring March 3, 1923. In August, 1921, he announced that he would not stand for re-election, declaring that a man who had been in public service for more than 50 years was entitled to a rest.

In his home state, Senator Page was referred to as "the stormy petrel of Vermont politics." He began public service in the state house of representatives in 1869. He served there until 1872 and from 1874 to 1876 represented Lamoille county in the state senate. His real rise to political place probably began in 1872 when he became secretary of the republican state committee, of which he was a member until 1890, the last four years as committe chairman.

Was Elected Governor.

Senator Page's first hard political contest was in his successful gubernatorial campaign in 1890. By intensive and systematic campaigning, he surprised political leaders by entering the Montpelier convention with sufficient pledges to capture the nominaion from Urban A. Woodbury. The contest, as in past years, involved the "old soldier" question, Civil war veterans had been a controlling factor but Mr. Page won despite the fact that he was not a veteran. He was defeated in an attempt in 1900 to secure a nomination for Congress, political contemporaries declaring that his rise in politics has become a menace to Senator Proctor and his associates.

Senator Page's home was at Hyde Park and the show place of the neighborhood with its picturesque views of the Green Mountains. He was born at Westfield, Vt., a few miles distant, and was educated at Norwich University, from which he received the degree of L. L. D. He had two daughters and one son.

TO BLOSSOMS—

Fair pledges of a fruitful tree,
Why lo ye fall so fast?
Your date is not so past
But you may stay here yet a while
To blush and gently smile
And go at last.

What! were ye born to be
An hour or half's delight,
And so to bid good-night
'Tis pity Nature brought ye forth
Merely to show your worth,
And lose you quite.

But you are lovely leaves, where we
May read how soon things have
Their end, though ne'er so brave;
And, after they have shown their pride
Like you a while, they glide
Into the grave.

FASHION HINTS—

Elaborate Sleeves.

A smart black velvet gown has a simple straight line, but enormous sleeves of gold lace that imparts an extremely exotic effect.

Combination of Leathers.

There is a tendency to combine two leathers in the newest pumps, such as suede and patent leather, or kid and lizard or alligator.

Bound With Leather.

Many of the smartest kasha sport dresses are bound with gold or silver leather.

Blue for Evening.

The blue evening gown is making a bid for attention this season, and is very lovely when combined with silver lace or pearl and brilliant embroidery.

In Pink and Silver.

A pink chiffon evening gown of much distinction is beaded with silver beads and banded with gray fox.

Feminine Touch.

Pumps and mules of delicate colored satin with a beaded or hand-painted motif across the vamp are very smart.

Thursday Reading Circle Meeting

The Thursday Reading Circle met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Floto.

Mrs. Floto furnished her own program which consisted of several musical selections by Mesdames Bishop, George and Miss Mary Hintz.

Mrs. Deutch then read a paper on "The Novel As An Educator." This closed the delightful program, and a delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

ENTERTAINED TUESDAY AT BARNHART HOME—

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barnhart pleasantly entertained Tuesday evening with a progressive five hundred party, the guests including Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perry and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ryan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Will Slothower. Mrs. Ryan won the ladies' head prize and Mrs. Perry won the consolation prize. Frank Perry won the gentlemen's head prize and Ben Ryan won the consolation prize for the gentlemen. At a late hour refreshments were served.

Heibenthal-Strawbridge Nuptials

On Wednesday at the parsonage of Rev. J. F. VanEvera, pastor of the Evangelical church in Ashton occurred the marriage of Clarence W. Heibenthal, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Heibenthal to Miss Dorcas Strawbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Strawbridge. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Roger Sanders. The young people will make thir home on the groom's father's farm, which he has been working the past year.

WESTMINSTER GUILD MEETS TUESDAY—

The Westminster Guild of the Presbyterian church will meet Tuesday evening with Mrs. P. H. Case, 316 Third street. Each one attending is requested to have with them some canned goods for Christmas baskets, for the Associated Charities.

Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY.

Breakfast—

Orange juice, cereal cooked with dates, thin cream, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Baked potatoes with creamed crab meat, hearts of lettuce with French dressing, brown bread, canned pears, chocolate brownies, tea, milk.

Diner—

Boiled mutton, boiled potatoes in parsley butter, creamed turnips, orange salad, rye bread, cranberry sponge, plain cake, milk, coffee.

A potato should be served with a poached egg to a child under ten years of age in place of the creamed crab meat suggested in the luncheon menu.

This menu is worth keeping in mind if a house guest is to be entertained during the holidays. There's nothing elaborate about it but it's good and not quite everyday fare.

Baked Potatoes with Creamed Crab Meat.

Four potatoes of uniform size, 8 tablespoons butter, 1 slice onion, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups milk, 1 can crab meat, paprika.

Bake potatoes until soft. Cut a cross on the flat side of each potato, fold back the skin and scoop out the inside. Put pulp through a ricer, season with salt and pepper and fill the potato shells about one-third full. Melt butter with onion slice and let stand 15 minutes. Remove onion and stir in flour. Cook and stir over the fire for three minutes. Add milk, slowly, stirring constantly. Add salt and paprika and bring to the boiling point. Add crab meat and cook over hot water while preparing the potato cases. Fill the cases with the creamed fish and cover with riced potato. Drop a piece of butter on top of each potato and place in a very hot oven long enough to melt the butter and color the riced potato. Serve at once.

ST. AGNES GUILD MET YESTERDAY—

St. Agnes Guild met with Miss Franc Ingraham yesterday afternoon, enjoying a fine picnic luncheon and making final preparation for the sale of fancy work Saturday at the Dixon Water Co's. office. In addition to the needlework, etc., there will be a food sale by the guilds. St. Ann's Guild held their meeting Wednesday in the Guild rooms, and finished up their work for Saturday's sale.

Christian Church Missionary Society

Mrs. Clinton Rhodes entertained the Woman's Missionary Society at her home, Thursday afternoon Dec. 3rd, with thirty-two members and friends present. Mrs. B. H. Cleaver the president, presided over the business session.

Meeting opened with song. Mrs. McGinnis and Mrs. Tice, then offered prayers. Each number was then asked to respond to the roll call by telling where some of our homes for orphans and old people are located. The minutes of the last meeting were accepted as read. Mrs. Ruggles and Mrs. Derr were then asked to give reports on the "One Day Convention on Stewardship," held at Rock Island, Nov. 12th. One of the thoughts stressed at the convention, was the fact that so many think they are making a sacrifice when they give a tenth to the Lord, but that really belongs to him. "Bring ye a tenth into the store house of the Lord," that, He asks. We are not Stewards until we are willing to give more than He asks; each one is given some talent, or talents, we should make use of those given to us, we read in the book "Altar Songs" that "If we rest, we rust." During the singing of a hymn, the offering was taken, after which Mrs. Palmer took charge of the program.

"The Devotional" was given by Mrs. Reagan. "Old Age," taken from the book Altar Songs; a hymn following this and prayer by Mrs. Seyster.

Mrs. Clinton Rhodes gave an excelent paper on our "Homes for Children," and Mrs. Tice told many interesting things about the "Homes for the Aged."

After the benediction, a social hour was enjoyed listening to music by radio. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames Ruggles, Cleaver, Sproul and Tice.

Let us bear in mind that Sunday, Dec. 6th is Woman's Missionary Day, that day and at Easter time are the only special offerings taken for this work and we should be most liberal in giving.

Social Circle Met With Mrs. Rushka

The Prairieville Social Circle met in an all-day meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Rushka at Gap Grove. A very pleasant day was enjoyed, Mrs. Rushka proving herself a delightful hostess. At the noon hour all enjoyed the picnic dinner. The afternoon was spent in transacting the regular business and in planning the work to be done by the Circle for Christmas gifts for the needy. A special meeting for the accumulating of these gifts will be held with Mrs. Cenie Straw, next Wednesday.

The regular meeting of the Circle will be held with Mrs. Albion Seavy Wednesday, Dec. 16th. This will be the much anticipated Christmas meeting, always so much enjoyed by the children and adults as well.

Choir Enjoyed A Taffy Pull

The Young People's choir of the Presbyterian church enjoyed a party last evening at the church, following practice, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Presbyterian church sponsoring the happy affair, with Mesdames Edwards and Woods as hostesses. With the adults present, the guests numbered about thirty, and all entered into the amusement and occupation of the evening, a taffy pull. The candy was well made, pulled and eaten with relish, everyone present reporting a "sweet" time.

ENTERTAINED WITH PICNIC SUPPER PARTY—

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rosbrook entertained with a picnic supper party last evening. The next meeting will be with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Gilbert, Dec. 19th.

ST. PAUL'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Rev. Lloyd Warren Walter, Pastor.
Rev. Carl B. Caughman, pastor in India.

9:30 a. m. Bible school. Mr. W. E. White, Supt.; Miss Eleanor Powell, Supt. Junior Dept., Mrs. L. C. Johnson, Supt. Primary Dept. At a meeting a week ago plans for Christmas were made. For this happy and beautiful season the help of all is needed, especially the parents can help by sending their children regularly to rehearsals.

Those who have subscribed for the new song books for the Bible school should turn in the price soon. The sooner we get it out of the way the easier it is.

The attendance is growing. Come and come on time.

10:45 a. m. Divine worship. Again at the morning service we are asking the boys and girls of the Junior Department of the Bible school to occupy their reserved place in the church. We have a talk prepared that will interest them. The sermon for the morning will follow. Subject: "Enduring Words."

6:30 p. m. Luther League. Leader, Eleanor Powell. Topic, "How Can We Translate Christmas into Service?" The League is planning to entertain the children of the Nachusa Home to a Christmas party again this year. The party will be given the Monday evening before Christmas. This is one of the very pleasant evenings of the year. The public is heartily invited to this service.

7:30 p. m. Divine worship. Sermon topic: "Being Stirred Up." The Young People's Choir will render special numbers and lead the music at this service.

2:00 p. m. Saturday the Confirmation class meets. The class this year is growing and will be larged. Every Saturday new members join the class.

7:30 p. m. Wednesday. A special program for this night. Walter Clarence Grahn will read "The Sign of the Cross." Mr. Grahn has acquired an enviable reputation in his profession through his remarkable talent, combined with untiring industry and love for his work. No admission will be charged but an offering will be received. Those who have heard Sarah Wilmer read "The Sign of the Cross" should not fail to hear Mr. Gran.

2:30 p. m. Thursday, the Woman's Missionary Society holds its monthly meeting. Much interest is centering in this meeting since it is time for the election of officers for the ensuing year.

You are invited to all our services.

AT THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Albert W. Carlson, Minister
210 Peoria, Ave.

In Appreciation: The very hearty response which was given to our meetings last Sunday both the morning and evening. For a stormy day we had a marvelously large attendance, the entire auditorium and Sunday school room filled. Such interest is always encouraging. Thank you. We will do all we can to make every meeting full of real life and permanent good. We invite you to make this your church home. The story last Sunday night was received with much pleasure. It was full of happiness, everyone went home with a real smile and joy in the heart. Ours is a big happy Sunday evening. Sing and smile with us next Sunday evening. See ad on back page of this paper.

Sunday Dec. 6

Sunday school at 9:45 a. m. It is delightful and full of good cheer. The cheerful singing, Mr. Ahrens leading, with the piano and big orchestra accompanying. We have departments and classes for everyone. We have competent teachers. We welcome all. C. C. Hintz, Supt.

MORNING WORSHIP 10:45. This service is with the ritual and sermon by the pastor and is worshipful. At this meeting we will have Mrs. George C. Heritage, a former Dixon woman, as the speaker. She has a big message and delivers it with fascination. It is our W. H. M. S. thank offering Sunday and we will make our offering for the cause of Missions.

EPWORTH LEAGUE meets at 6:30 p. m. This fine meeting is in charge of the young folks and young folks will find it of practical value to them.

INTERMEDIATE League meets at 6:30 p. m. and Mrs. Powell is in charge.

OUR HAPPY SUNDAY EVENING 7:30. The Rev. Albert W. Carlson will give another one of those big inspiring Dramatic-Book-Story-Sermons which have called together the large crowd on Sunday evenings. This time he will use "One Increasing Purpose" (Hutchinson) author of "If Winter Comes." It took the author three years to write this book and it is his masterpiece in story. It is better than his book "This Freedom" and more thrilling than "If Winter Comes." The character portrayal is masterful, the clash between ideals in real people is dramatic, tragic, it is stimulating reaches a sublime peak with a soul stirring inspiration. You will not want to miss hearing it, or not knowing "One Increasing Purpose" for which the hearer seeks and finds. We will have a big sing with cheerful songs, orchestra, piano and organ accompaniment. Special selection by the orchestra, young peoples chorus and soloists. Bring your friends, they will appreciate it too. You will have a better week when you spend Sunday evening with us.

TUESDAY, Dec. 8. The Wesleyans Missionary Society meets with Mr. and Mrs. H. Hey, 309 E. Chamberlain 7:30 p. m. A fine program is arranged for the occasion. All are asked to bring a 25 cent present to be sent to Mercy Center, Chicago.

WEDNESDAY: Our Midweek Bible Study Hour and inspirational meeting 7:30 p. m.

THURSDAY: W. H. M. S. meets with Mrs. Herbert Scott, 188 E. Boyd. A Christmas meeting and all are invited.

THURSDAY: 7:30 p. m. Rehearsal of the Young People's Chorus. At 8 p. m. the orchestra, Miss Ackert, conductress.

We wish that all folks will feel this may be your church, and to all our meetings your are welcome.

Did You Ever Stop to Think—

BY

E. R. Waite, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla. Board of Commerce

That all the advantages imaginable canot make a business great unless its owners realize the importance of continuous advertising and use its service in the development of its business.

That when a business concern realizes fully the value of advertising, nothing will retard its growth, for quality, continuously advertised, will supply the business needed.

That the good will of the public is the most valuable asset any business can have. Continuous advertising is a builder of good will.

That those who have a desire to give customers satisfaction and to meet their every requirement, prove that fact by continuous advertising.

That advertising through the printed page is the most pleasing sales service that can be given the public.

That advertising pays in good will and profits. It tells the public the practical and distinctive features of merchandise and service.

Continuous advertising brings business from sections where business has not heretofore been secured.

Advertising keeps busy all the while building better business for those fortunate concerns who enlist its services.

Advertising is of universal help. It serves everyone everywhere.

CHESTY!

The typical American of the old days was a swaggering, boisterous sort of chap who went about his business with a carefree certitude in his heart that he was living in the finest, greatest, most wonderful country that had ever blossomed out on the face of the earth. Further, he didn't care who knew that he felt that way, and he pitied all foreigners.

During the past couple of decades there has been a decline in this attitude. We have been growing more humble. In fact, in some quarters there is a tendency to shake the head dolefully over everything American, to lament that we are not as other nations are, to see virtues in every country but our own.

To this writer, at least, a return to the old swagger would be infinitely preferable.

Examine it just a minute. What was that swagger based on? How did it arise?

During the past 100 years America rose from a backwoods group of colonies to become the richest, most powerful country in existence.

There was a tremendous lot to be done, and we did it. With a swiftness unparalleled in the world's history, the nation spread out over the continent, brought huge cities like Chicago and Detroit and San Francisco and Seattle to birth where there had been only a wilderness, made money so fast that no one could count it.

America became money mad, with reason. Factories blossomed too thick to number. Our very farms were bigger than any other nation's. Our buildings were the tallest in the world. Our cities were the busiest. Our railroads were the longest.

Now while all this was happening there wasn't much time left for things like art and literature and the other manifestations of creative thought. America's taste in such matters became a byword throughout the world. We produced little and did not understand much of what other nations produced.

But the point to remember is: it had to be that way.

It would have been well if America could have brought forth a dozen Poes instead of one, for example; but it was more important, for the time, that she produce wealth instead and let the Poes shift for themselves.

For there is only one way to judge and that is by the future. And for the future of America, it was not perhaps essential that conditions be such as would permit poetry and the arts to thrive. It was eternally essential that conditions permit Rockefellers and Henry Fords to thrive.

Even now we hardly grasp the vision that is ours. Even now we hardly realize what America is to become—a land of happiness for everyone, with all that the word implies in the way of material and spiritual blessings.

A land of wide, shining streets and comfortable homes, with happy children and strong, contented men and women, with poverty dead and sickness in permanent exile, with hunger unknown and ignorance gone forever—this is the goal toward which we have been working, whether we know it or not.

To gain it we must have faith and confidence. We must glory in America, in her crudeness and her blindness as well as in her virtues. It is destiny.

Let the eagle scream!

BIG HOLIDAY TRADE.

Says a prominent business reviewer: "The prospects are that the holiday trade during the coming weeks will be the greatest and the most profitable it has ever been." Merchants in Dixon say it is starting early this year. With reasonable weather, it promises well.

The year as a whole has been prosperous the country over, with confidence and volume of business in most lines steadily growing. The last quarter promises still better profits and more widespread employment. There is no big boom, and none is expected; but what is looked for, properly enough, is a continuation and improvement of the steady, sane prosperity that has characterized 1925 so far, accentuated by the Christmas trade.

That trade has already begun rolling up like a snowball. Big stocks have been laid in, and will be sold to big crowds. Manufacturers promise to be moderate about prices. The public has money to buy, but is not really in an extravagant mood. It wants to buy many things, not to pay all its money for a few high-priced things.

The public itself has a duty in the matter. That is to start early and spread its buying over several weeks, instead of dumping all the burden upon the stores in the last few days before Christmas. This will be a help to clerks, less strain on [illegible] and will promote the making of more reasonable [illegible].

LICENSES.

The majority of states have as yet failed to enact automobile drivers' license laws.

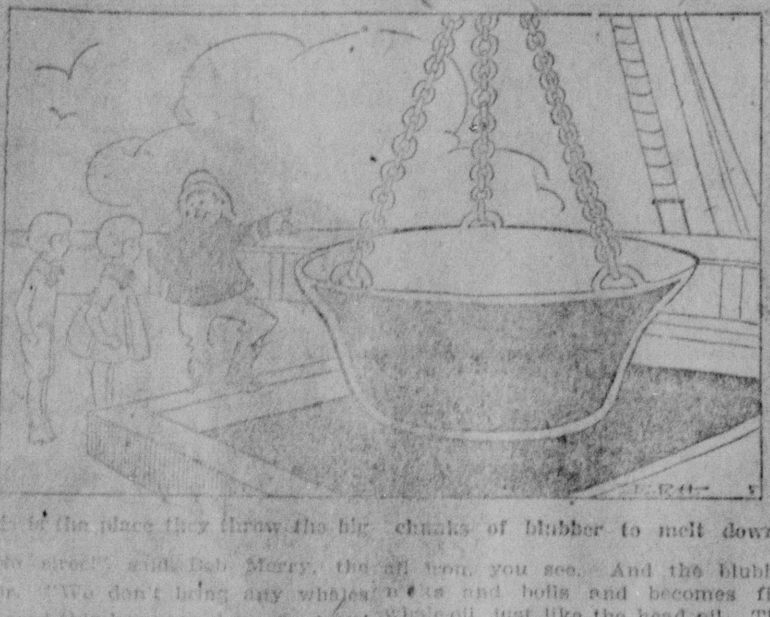
Properly administered, those laws are highly beneficial. They provide the only means yet devised to keep careless or incompetent drivers off the streets. And they do not bother any legitimate motorist.

Eventually every state will have one. Let us hope it is [illegible]

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

BOB TELLS ABOUT WHALES



"This is the place they throw the big chunks of blubber to melt down."

"No sirree!" said Bob Merry, the sailor. "We don't bring any whales on board this here vessel, so we don't! They're too big! We just rope 'em and let 'em float alongside the vessel until we're ready to strip the hide and blubber off 'em!"

"How do you do that?" asked Nick.

"Well," said Bob. "It isn't as dainty as a pink tea, but it has to be done, so it does. So they take and cut the poor feller's hide right through in strips, rolling him around with the ropes. Of course he's dead first.

"The way they strip the hide off, the hunks of fat or blubber come with it. Mister Whale is a regular Mrs. Spratt for fat so he is. He's all fat. And you'd never believe it, but for all Mister Whale's head is so big, it isn't brains. He hasn't any more brains than a lake-fly. No sirree! His head is full o' oil—valuable sperm oil. And you see this here dipper, young 'uns? Well, that is to dip the sperm oil right out o' the whale's head, for they cut a big hole on top and dip right down in. They get barrels and barrels of oil. And see here!"

Bob went to the place in the middle of the boat where a great iron cauldron was built. It was a big square affair, big enough to hold an automobile.

The Twins followed him and looked down into the cauldron eagerly. It was empty now.

"This is the place they throw the big chunks of blubber to melt down," said Bob. "They build a big fire under it—it's safe enough, for it's all iron, you see. And the blubber melts and boils and becomes fine whale-oil, just like the head oil. This big ladle here is to dip it out into barrels. See here!"

Bob took the Twins to another place in the vessel where they could look down through a sort of hole into the cellar, or hold of the ship. It was very dim and dark, but they could make out the forms of huge barrels—or hogsheads—turned on their side.

"There's a couple o' dozen o' them," said Bob. "And that's all a whaler brings to port, no whales at all, but barrels of fine whale-oil. And some whale-bone, too, when they get certain kinds of whales. Whalebone is valuable for lots of things."

Then he took them "below" as he said—to the place where the men lived. The captain had a fine bedroom with a bed swung head and foot from a wooden frame. He also had a nice little sitting room which few people would believe, to look at the whaler. But it was true. Everything was as dainty and comfortable and clean as a pin. So was the mess-room, or dining room where the men ate.

The sailors slept "aft" in bunks.

It certainly was interesting.

After while Bob Merry rowed the Twins ashore.

"Some time when we are going out for whales our ship looks very fine," he said proudly. "Ships always look handsomer with their sails all set. If you come again perhaps you can go with us on a trip."

"I hope so," said Nick.

LETTER FROM SALLY ATHERTON TO LESLIE PRESCOTT CONTINUED

Mrs. Prescott was quite as furious as I, Leslie, but she stood her ground, I will say that for her. She doesn't come from a long line of puritans for nothing.

"I wonder if my son's wife knows not only of your daily visits to this house but of the daily visits of that moving picture actress to the children," she said.

You see, Leslie, Paula has been coming up to the house every day about luncheon time and going in to see the children. You know how daffy she is about children. She would stay there until about one o'clock when I left to go to luncheon and then we'd go somewhere for our midday meal and I have been going back to the office for the afternoon.

This seemed to me a very nice arrangement under the circumstances, as I knew that Paula was very nervous over her enforced wait, because of the accident at the mill, and I had to go to see Mr. Prescott every day. But, here was this old woman threatening to spoil everything, as she did ultimately.

She threatened to do this at the time but I didn't think it was possible she could be so worried. She said to me:

"I, for one, do not approve of strange young women being so much at the home of a young man while his wife is away. I think I'll write Leslie tonight. It seems to me she ought to know absolutely everything that is going on."

When she said this, Leslie dear, I didn't know what to do. You know, I have been thrown so much more with men than with women—especially the kind of women to which Mrs. Prescott belongs, that I guess I am afraid of them. I not only do not understand their language but I do not think their thoughts. I cannot possibly get their point of view.

I didn't want to make trouble between Mr. Prescott and his mother and I know what a fuss he can kick up at times, so I decided to let things string along for a few days. But I ought to have known that old woman better, even if I did think that perhaps, if I told her that Mr. Prescott had forbidden anyone of us to write to you about this accident, she might think that he meant her as well. I should have gone directly to Mr. Prescott's room after this and told him the whole story. Probably it would have saved you a great deal of worry.

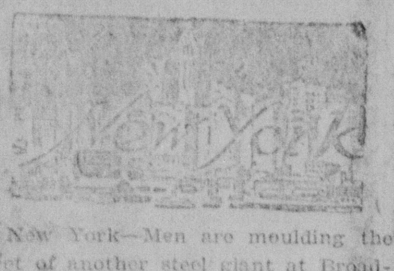
TOMORROW—Letter from Sally Atherton to Leslie Prescott.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth.—Isaiah 5; 8.

If you seek in the spirit of selfishness to grasp all as your own, you shall lose all and be driven out of the world, at last, naked and forlorn, to everlasting poverty and contempt.—Jonathan Edwards.



New York—Men are moulding the feet of another steel giant at Broadway and 44th street. It is night and the wind is biting cold, but down in the great pit the man work on. A great crane shrieks above the wind's whistle. Clackety-bang! Clackety-bang. Picks swing rhythmically into the rock base. Lanterns bob and dance about in the pit like phosphorus on a tropic sea. Now the red light of danger, followed by a deafening roar as dynamite tears at the stubborn bowels. Voices, like echoes, come faintly up in spite of the city's din. Mechanical silhouettes bend and rise as though in some strange rhythmic dance. Black figures weave in and out of the eerie black pattern. An acetylin torch loosens a great shower of sparks. For an instant the whole scene is lighted. Crowds press closer to the rail. "My goodness, one of those men in his shirt sleeves. How can he do it?" The Broadway siren pulls her great fur coat lighter about her and shivers.

All around great golden streams of blood flow through the pulsing arteries. Great squares of golden brilliance lure the pleasure seekers. Al Jolson, "Gay Paree," "Messrs. Shubert Present." On every side the great signs blink and cavort. Down in the black hole men are moulding the feet of another steel giant.

Clackty-bang! Clackety-bang! — Crowds, hurrying to the theater, pause for a moment to peer down. "Let's hurry, we're late, it's too cold to stand here." Yet many stand for hours as though hypnotized by the blinking eyes of lanterns. Taxis honk by. Beggars, millionaires, women good and bad and indifferent, the lonesome and the over-feted. They all must pass this corner.

The night wears on. The theaters have emptied. Once more the crowds pass by. "My goodness are they still working? The poor man. And it's so cold." The golden blood grows sluggish and loses its luster. One by one the squares of golden brilliance disappear and become mere black silhouettes against the sky. Only the revellers from the night clubs remain. Their taxis careen down the street. A woman laughs in that hysterical high pitch that can be produced only after the enth drink. A silk hatted tippler staggers by, grabs the rail and stares down stupidly for a moment. The shower of sparks mocks him. He chuckles and staggers on. A bunch of college boys come singing down the street. But still goes on the clackety-bang! clackety-bang! of the men who are moulding the feet of another steel giant.

For what? All around tower other steel giants. Each day an endless mass of men and women, boys and girls are fed to them. They are sapped of strength and energy and dumped back into the street at the stroke of five or six. And then another day, another meal for the giants and thus on through months and years.

Dawn comes. The black pit loses its shadows and tired men put on coats and hats, take up lunch pails and lumber up the street. The illusion is gone. Here in the pit are nothing but great cranes, mortar boxes, tools, the sign of a contracting company, bags of sand and cement—yet of such things are the feet of the steel giants made.

Nelson Young Lady Surprised by Party

Nelson—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Trotter of Taylorville spent last week at the home of their nephew, Chas. Trotter.

Chas. Carnos of Chicago visited friends in Nelson a few days last week.

Mrs. Chas. Trotter and Mrs. Ernie Fruicks drove to Chicago last week in the Trotter car and visited friends.

Master William Ortgiesen spent the week-end at the home of his uncle, Edward Gardner of Oak Park.

Mrs. Edward Ortgiesen entertained a few ladies at her home with a luncheon in honor of Mrs. C. Welker, who leaves with her husband Dec. 12 for Paris, France, where they plan to spend three month. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. H. Sweitzer and Mrs. Emil Jenssen of Harmon; Mrs. Chas. Straughn, Mrs. H. McGregor and Mrs. Ray Salmon of Sterling. The ladies presented Mrs. Welker with a pretty gift and wished her a very pleasant journey.

Mrs. Joe Oswald entertained Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Welker.

Henry Bergonz of Toluca is making his home with his brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Bergonz, and is working at the NorthWestern roundhouse.

Saturday evening Miss Alice Duffy was invited to the M. Callahan home to hear a radio concert. Hardly had she seated herself when she was surrounded by thirty of her neighbors who reminded her that it was her birthday, and presented her with a beautiful table lamp. Dancing, games and music were enjoyed, and at 10 o'clock an apetizing lunch was served. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Miss Duffy many happy returns of the day.

Robert Gerdes has returned to Nelson after spending a year in northern Wisconsin.

Charles Baird and William McPherson of Chicago have been in Nelson a few days on business for the North-Western.

THE METHOD

"Sculpture is very easy, isn't it?" asked a sweet young lady at an exhibition of statuary.

"Very, very easy," said the sculptor, "and very, very simple. You just take a block of marble and a chisel and knock off all the marble you don't want."—Outlook.

The Fast That Failed

Jean Wally started out to show French folks he could go without food, drink and sleep for 2T 8days. But after he spent 12 days in the glass show case shown above, a girl munching a cream puff stopped to look at him. And it was too much! Wally smashed the glass with the chair in which he is shown seated, and rushed wildly out. Police then carried him away in a straight jacket.

Salvation Army Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out: is Proved

The goblins of Little Orphan Annie haven't got anything on the Salvation Army. It will get you if you don't watch out.

Adjutant Kline, who is here organizing the Lee Co. Home Service drive, tells of an interesting conversation he had on the train in Minnesota recently. Attracted by his uniform, three men entered into the conversation with him. One of them, a young banker from St. Louis, said the first time he met the Salvation Army he helped break up the meeting, but the Salvation Army had got him, when he recovered consciousness during the battle of Argonne with his head resting in a Salvation Army Lassie's lap. The second man said that he had never expected to come in contact with the Salvation Army because he lived in a small town, but that his father of whom all trace had been lost was discovered by the Salvation Army and through this organization he had been able to visit his father just before the latter died. The third man said, "I never had believed in the Salvation Army until serious trouble came to my own family and if it hadn't been for the Salvation Army, I wouldn't be here today."

It is a fair estimate that 50,000,000 Americans come in contact with the Salvation Army. Its many acts and institutions affect many phases of life and all for the better.

CHESTY!

The typical American of the old days was a swaggering, boisterous sort of chap who went about his business with a carefree certitude in his heart that he was living in the finest, greatest, most wonderful country that had ever blossomed out on the face of the earth. Further, he didn't care who knew that he felt that way, and he pitied all foreigners.

During the past couple of decades there has been a decline in this attitude. We have been growing more humble. In fact, in some quarters there is a tendency to shake the head dolefully over everything American, to lament that we are not as other nations are, to see virtues in every country but our own.

To this writer, at least, a return to the old swagger would be infinitely preferable.

Examine it just a minute. What was that swagger based on? How did it arise?

During the past 100 years America rose from a backwoods group of colonies to become the richest, most powerful country in existence.

There was a tremendous lot to be done, and we did it. With a swiftness unparalleled in the world's history, the nation spread out over the continent, brought huge cities like Chicago and Detroit and San Francisco and Seattle to birth where there had been only a wilderness, made money so fast that no one could count it.

America became money mad, with reason. Factories blossomed too thick to number. Our very farms were bigger than any other nation's. Our buildings were the tallest in the world. Our cities were the busiest. Our railroads were the longest.

Now while all this was happening there wasn't much time left for things like art and literature and the other manifestations of creative thought. America's taste in such matters became a byword throughout the world. We produced little and did not understand much of what other nations produced.

But the point to remember is: it had to be that way.

It would have been well if America could have brought forth a dozen Poes instead of one, for example; but it was more important, for the time, that she produce wealth instead and let the Poes shift for themselves.

For there is only one way to judge and that is by the future. And for the future of America, it was not perhaps essential that conditions be such as would permit poetry and the arts to thrive. It was eternally essential that conditions permit Rockefellers and Henry Fords to thrive.

Even now we hardly grasp the vision that is ours. Even now we hardly realize what America is to become—a land of happiness for everyone, with all that the word implies in the way of material and spiritual blessings.

A land of wide, shining streets and comfortable homes, with happy children and strong, contented men and women, with poverty dead and sickness in permanent exile, with hunger unknown and ignorance gone forever—this is the goal toward which we have been working, whether we know it or not.

To gain it we must have faith and confidence. We must glory in America, in her crudeness and her blindness as well as in her virtues. It is destiny.

Let the eagle scream!

BIG HOLIDAY TRADE.

Says a prominent business reviewer: "The prospects are that the holiday trade during the coming weeks will be the greatest and the most profitable it has ever been." Merchants in Dixon say it is starting early this year. With reasonable weather, it promises well.

The year as a whole has been prosperous the country over, with confidence and volume of business in most lines steadily growing. The last quarter promises still better profits and more widespread employment. There is no big boom, and none is expected; but what is looked for, properly enough, is a continuation and improvement of the steady, sane prosperity that has characterized 1925 so far, accentuated by the Christmas trade.

That trade has already begun rolling up like a snowball. Big stocks have been laid in, and will be sold to big crowds. [illegible] promise to be moderate about prices. The [illegible] has the money to buy, but is not really in an extravagant mood. It wants to buy many things, not to pay all its money for a few high-priced things.

The public itself has a duty in the matter. That is to start [illegible] and spread its buying over several weeks, instead of [illegible] burden upon the stores in the last few days [illegible]. This will be a help to clerks, less strain on [illegible] and will promote the making of more reasonable [illegible].

LICENSES.

The majority of states have as yet failed to enact automobile drivers' license laws. [illegible]

Properly administered, these laws are highly beneficial. They provide the only means yet devised to keep careless or [illegible] off the streets. And they do not bother any legitimate motorist.

Eventually every state will have one. Let us hope it is [illegible]

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

BOB TELLS ABOUT WHALES

"This is the place they throw the big chunks of blubber to melt down."

"No siree!" said Bob Merry, the sailor. "We don't bring any whales on board this here vessel, so we don't! They're too big! We just rope 'em and let 'em float alongside the vessel until we're ready to strip the hide and blubber off 'em."

"How do you do that?" asked Nick.

"Well," said Bob. "It isn't as dainty as a pink tea, but it has to be done, so it does. So they take and cut the poor feller's hide right through in strips, rolling him around with the ropes. Of course he's dead first.

"The way they strip the hide off, the hunks of fat or blubber come with it. Mister Whale is a regular Mrs. Spratt for fat so he is. He's all fat. And you'd never believe it, but for all Mister Whale's head is so big, it isn't brains. He hasn't any more brains than a lakefly. No sirree! His head is full o' oil—valuable sperm oil. And you see this here dipper, young 'uns? Well, that is to dip the sperm oil right out o' the whale's head, for they cut a big hole on top and dip right down in. They get barrels and barrels of oil. And see here!"

Bob went to the place in the middle of the boat where a great iron cauldron was built. It was a big square affair, big enough to hold an automobile.

The Twins followed him and looked down into the cauldron eagerly. It was empty now.

"This is the place they throw the big chunks of blubber to melt down," said Bob. "They build a big fire under it—it's safe enough, for it's all iron, you see. And the blubber melts and boils and becomes fine whale-oil, just like the head oil. This big ladle here is to dip it out into barrels. See here!"

Bob took the Twins to another place in the vessel where they could look down through a sort of hole into the cellar, or hold of the ship. It was very dim and dark, but they could make out the forms of huge barrels—or hogsheads—turned on their side.

"There's a couple o' dozen o' them," said Bob. "And that's all a whaler brings to port, no whales at all, but barrels of fine whale-oil. And some whale-bone, too, when they get certain kinds of whales. Whalebone is valuable for lots of things."

Then he took them "below" as he said—to the place where the men lived. The captain had a fine bedroom with a bed swung head and foot from a wooden frame. He also had a nice little sitting room which few people would believe to look at the whaler. But it was true. Everything was as dainty and comfortable and clean as a pin. So was the mess-room, or dining room where the men ate.

The sailors slept "aft" in bunks.

It certainly was interesting.

After while Bob Merry rowed the Twins ashore.

"Some time when we are going out for whales our ship looks very fine," he said proudly. "Ships always look handsomer with their sails all set. If you come again perhaps you can go with us on a trip."

"I hope so," said Nick.

Mrs. Prescott was quite as furious as I, Leslie, but she stood her ground, I will say that for her. She doesn't come from a long line of puritans for nothing.

"I wonder if my son's wife knows not only of your daily visits to this house but of the daily visits of that moving picture actress to the children," she said.

You see, Leslie, Paula has been coming up to the house every day about luncheon time and going in to see the children. You know how daffy she is about children. She would stay there until about one o'clock when I left to go to luncheon and then went on somewhere for our [illegible] meal, and I have been going back to the office for the afternoon.

This seemed to me a very nice arrangement, under the circumstances, as I know that Paula was very nervous over her enforced wait, because of the accident at the mill, and I had to go to see Mr. Prescott every day. But here was this old woman threatening to spoil everything, as she did ultimately.

She threatened to do this at the time but I didn't think it was possible she could be so worried. She said to me:

"I, for one, do not approve of strange young women being so much at the home of a young man whose wife is away. I think I'll write Leslie tonight. It seems to me she ought to know absolutely everything that is going on."

When she said this, Leslie dear, I didn't know what to do. You know, I have been thrown so much more with men than with women—especially the kind of women to which Mrs. Prescott belongs, that I guess I am afraid of them. I not only do not understand their language but I do not think their thoughts. I cannot possibly get their point of view.

I didn't want to make trouble between Mr. Prescott and his mother and I know what a fuss he can kick up at times, so I decided to let things string along for a few days. But I ought to have known that old woman better, even if I did think that perhaps, if I told her that Mr. Prescott had forbidden anyone of us to write to you about the accident, she might think that he meant her as well. I should have gone directly to Mr. Prescott's room after this and told him the whole story. Probably it would have saved you a great deal of worry.

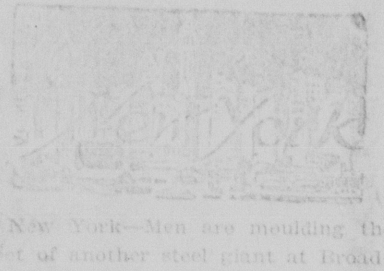
TOMORROW—Letter from Sally Atherton to Leslie Prescott.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Woe unto them that join house to house, that lay field to field, till there be no place, that they may be placed alone in the midst of the earth.—Isaiah 5: 8.

If you seek in the spirit of selfishness to grasp all as your own, you shall lose All and be driven out of the world, at last, naked and forlorn, to everlasting poverty and contempt. —Jonathan Edwards.



New York—Men are moulding the feet of another steel giant at Broadway and 44th street. It is night and the wind is biting cold, but down in the great pit the men work on. A great crane shrieks above the wind's whistle. Clackety-bang! Clackety-bang. Picks swing rhythmically into the rock base. Lanterns bob and dance about in the pit like phosphorus on a tropic sea. Now the red light of danger, followed by a deafening roar as dynamite tears at the stubborn bowels. Voices, like echoes, come faintly up in spite of the city's din. Mechanical silhouettes bend and rise as though in some strange rhythmic dance. Black figures weave in and out of the eerie black pattern. An acetylin torch loosens a great shower of sparks. For an instant the whole scene is lighted. Crowds press closer to the rail. "My goodness, one of those men in his shirt sleeves. How can he do it?" The Broadway siren pulls her great fur coat tighter about her and shivers.

All around great golden streams of blood flow through the pulsing arteries. Great squares of golden brilliance lure the pleasure seekers. Al Jolson, "Gay Paree," "Messrs. Shubert Present." On every side the great signs blink and cavort. Down in the black hole men are moulding the feet of another steel giant.

Clackty-bang! Clackety-bang! —Crowds, hurrying to the theater, pause for a moment to peer down. "Let's hurry, we're late, it's too cold to stand here." Yet many stand for hours as though hypnotized by the blinking eyes of lanterns. Taxis honk by. Beggars, millionaires, women good and bad and indifferent, the lonesome and the over-feted. They all must pass this corner.

The night wears on. The theaters have emptied. Once more the crowds pass by. "My goodness are they still working? The poor man. And it's so cold." The golden blood grows sluggish and loses its luster. One by one the squares of golden brilliance disappear and become mere black silhouettes against the sky. Only the revellers from the night clubs remain. Their taxis careen down the street. A woman laughs in that hysterical high pitch that can be produced only after the enth drink. A silk hatted tippler staggers by, grabs the rail and stares down stupidly for a moment. The shower of sparks mocks him. He chuckles and staggers on. A bunch of college boys come singing down the street. But still goes on the clackety-bang! clackety-bang! of the men who are moulding the feet of another steel giant.

For what? All around tower other steel giants. Each day an endless mass of men and women, boys and girls are fed to them. They are sapped of strength and energy and dumped back into the street at the stroke of five or six. And then another day, another meal for the giants and thus on through months and years.

Dawn comes. The black pit loses its shadows and tired men put on coats and hats, take up lunch pails and lumber up the street. The illusion is gone. Here in the pit are nothing but great cranes, mortar boxes, tools, the sign of a contracting company, bags of sand and cement—yet of such things are the feet of the steel giants made.

—James W. Dean.

Nelson Young Lady Surprised by Party

Nelson.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Trotter of Taylorville spent last week at the home of their nephew, Chas. Trotter.

Chas. Carnos of Chicago visited friends in Nelson a few days last week.

Mrs. Chas. Trotter and Mrs. Ernie Frucks drove to Chicago last week in the Trotter car and visited friends.

Master William Ortgiesen spent the week-end at the home of his uncle, Edward Gardner of Oak Park.

Mrs. Edward Ortgiesen entertained a few ladies at her home with a luncheon in honor of Mrs. C. Welker, who leaves with her husband Dec. 12 for Paris, France, where they plan to spend three month. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. H. Sweitzer and Mrs. Emil Jenssen of Harmon; Mrs. Chas. Straughn, Mrs. H. McGregor and Mrs. Ray Salmon of Sterling. The ladies presented Mrs. Welker with a pretty gift and wished her a very pleasant journey.

Mrs. Joe Oswald entertained Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Welker.

Henry Bergonz of Toluca is making his home with his brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Bergonz, and is working at the NorthWestern roundhouse.

Saturday evening Miss Alice Duffy was invited to the M. Callahan home to hear a radio concert. Hardly had she seated herself when she was surrounded by thirty of her neighbors who reminded her that it was her birthday, and presented her with a beautiful table lamp. Dancing, games and music were enjoyed, and at 10 o'clock an apetizing lunch was served. The guests departed at a late hour, wishing Miss Duffy many happy returns of the day.

Robert Gerdes has returned to Nelson after spending a year in northern Wisconsin.

Charles Baird and William McPherson of Chicago have been in Nelson a few days on business for the North Western.

THE METHOD

"Sculpture is very easy, isn't it?" asked a sweet young lady at an exhibition of statuary.

"Very, very easy," said the sculptor, "and very, very simple. You just take a block of marble and a chisel and knock off all the marble you don't want."—Outlook.

The Fast That Failed

Jean Wally started out to show French folks he could go without food, drink and sleep for 2T 8days. But after he spent 12 days in the glass show case shown above, a girl munching a cream puff stopped to look at him. And it was too much! Wally smashed the glass with the chair in which he is shown seated, and rushed wildly out. Police then carried him away in a straight jacket.

Salvation Army Will Get You if You Don't Watch Out: is Proved

The goblins of Little Orphan Annie haven't got anything on the Salvation Army. It will get you if you don't watch out.

Adjutant Kline, who is here organizing the Lee Co. Home Service drive, tells of an interesting conversation he had on the train in Minnesota recently. Attracted by his uniform, three men entered into the conversation with him. One of them, a young banker from St. Louis, said the first time he met the Salvation Army he helped break up the meeting, but the Salvation Army had got him, when he recovered consciousness during the battle of Argonne with his head resting in a Salvation Army Lassie's lap. The second man said that he had never expected to come in contact with the Salvation Army because he lived in a small town, but that his father of whom all trace had been lost was discovered by the Salvation Army and through this organization he had been able to visit his father just before the latter died. The third man said, "I never had believed in the Salvation Army until serious trouble came to my own family and if it hadn't been for the Salvation Army, I wouldn't be here today."

It is a fair estimate that 50,000,000 Americans come in contact with the Salvation Army. Its many acts and institutions affect many phases of life and all for the better.

Butcher Shop No Place for Game Bird—Carlstrom

Springfield.—A butcher shop is no place for game girds

Attorney General Carlstrom today made public an opinion given State's Attorney Lawrence A. Jayne of Freeport, of Stephenson county in which he interpreted Section 17 of the Game and Fish code.

This act, the attorney general advised, provides for "the number of game birds which one may have in his possession at anl one time. Section 17 is intended to preclude anyone from having in his, her or its possession other than as an individual, any of said game birds.

"Hence, it is my opinioin that it is not permissible for individuals to placer in refrigerators in butcher shops game birds for any purpose, and the possession in the refrigerator in the butcher shop of any of the game birds mentioned would be a violation of Section 17, of said act.

"Under section 1?, it is my opinion that individuals could place game birds in the refrigerator in the private home of a butcher, without a violation; but when such game bird or birds is or are placed in the refrigerator of a butcher shop there is a violation, in my opinion, of said Section 17."

Man Arrested in Dixon Was Held to Grand Jury

Sterling Gazette—William Boucher was bound over to the action of the January grand jury under $500 bonds which he was unable to furnish and he was taken to Morrison and lodged in the county jail. He was charged with driving his car while intoxicated. Frank Spangler of Rock Falls, a companion of Boucher at the time the act was committed, paid a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $20.40 and secured his release.

The act was committed on the night of November 21st. In attempting to stop the car, Officer Gooding was knocked down and considerably bruised ad his uniform was torn. Boucher left town and it was learned by Chief Haglock that he was in Dixon and a warrant was sent there and he was picked up and turned over to the local officers.

DAWES VS. SENATE FIGHT LIKELY TO BREAK OUT ANEW

Senators Have Not Forgotten Lecture He Delivered Them

Washington, Dec. 4—(AP)—In his role of crusader for reform of the rules of the Senate, Vice President Charles G. Dawes will occupy at the approaching session of Congress a position unique in the history of his high office.

Most Vice Presidents of the past have been content to merely preside over the Senate without undertaking to influence the affairs of that august body, but Mr. Dawes with characteristic vigor threw down the gauntlet in his inaugural address last March 4, and since has taken his fight to the country.

Since he has neither voice nor vote in Senate affairs—except in the event of a tie ballot—there is no small amount of speculation as to how he will proceed further with his campaign. His idea has been that if the people could get the facts about the rule permitting a one man filibuster they would bring sufficient pressure to bear to have that rule changed.

As the Congress assembles there is no indication, however, that there has been any material change in the Senate sentiment on this point and leaders on both sides say frankly there is little likelihood that any effort at modification can make headway during the new session.

Don't Forget Lecture

Opponents of any change in the rules, Republicans as well as Democrats, have not forgotten the lecture which the Vice President read to the Senate in the presence of the President, the Supreme Court, the House and the Diplomatic Corps and the abrupt manner in which he swept aside the time-honored custom of swearing in new Senators in small groups.

Administration leaders during the brief special session of the Senate last March were able to hold off any open and vitrolic attacks on Mr. Dawes from the floor such as some Senators had planned, but they expect some efforts at the "hazing" of the Vice President during the next few months.

The gulf which was opened between the Vice President and some Senators on March 4 has been widened by the campaign he has conducted during the summer in the states of some senators who come up for reelection next year.

Has Little Support.

These Senators naturally have not taken kindly to this campaign and they can be counted upon to oppose the Vice President in his rules fight with all of the vigor and influence at their command.

Mr. Dawes has some support in the Senate itself for a modification of the rule under which a single Senator at the close of a session can block legislation or even at any time in the session long delay a final vote by means of a filibuster.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican floor leader, and Senator Underwood of Alabama, a former Democratic leader, favor a change in the rules, but they concede that there is an overwhelming sentiment in the Senate against any change that will put a check on the right of Senators to speak as long and as often as they may desire on any subject.

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

London—There's an epidemic of short-skirt influenza. Girls are being advised by doctors to wear knickers underneath because of insistence of being in style in inclement weather is causing chills and rheumatic pains in the knees and hip.

New York—Fed up with the modern "purveyors" of books, Winston Churchill won't turn loose stories he has written for himself, to be sold at high prices to people who won't appreciate them. He has written for pleasure only the last ten years and now he's taking a vacation in Bermuda. He thinks the price of books is beyond the reach of those who love them.

London—The "Black Museum" of Scotland Yard, where relics of murders and other crimes are stored, has received a surprise visit by the Prince of Wales.

Warsaw—Joliboche, a square in the new part of this city, is to be re-named for Woodrow Wilson.

Los Angeles—Mary is 32 years old and Doug is 42. The revelations are made in application for passports for Mr. and Mrs. Fairbanks for a tour of the world.

Columbia, Mo.—Co-eds of the University of Missouri disapprove disorderly serenades and drinking among both men and women. The police will be called in to break up disorderly serenades and any co-ed who does not order out a male caller who has been drinking will lose social privilege.

Norway, Maine—Mellie Dunham, fiddler extraordinary, is taking to Henry Ford a pair of snow shoes like those he made for Peary to wear to the North Pole.

Philadelphia—At his own request the police are retaining John Berger, Jr., a truck driver from two wives. Seeing the two of them waiting on his truck for him he sneaked off to the police station and had himself arrested.

Angora—Some old-fashioned Turks are fighting and dying for the fez. One has been hanged for attacking the wearing of hats which the government has decreed. Forty rioters have been arrested for shouting "We don't want hats."

New York—Count Salm has retained a lawyer for himself. No, he insists, he has not tried to reach the countess by telephone at Palm Beach.

Chicago—About the most perfect girl and the most perfect boy selected at the International Live Stock Exposition: Alice Burkhart, 15, of Iowa, milks cows, rides horse back, swims, plays tennis and basketball. Up at 6 and to bed at 9:30. George Cuskaden, 14, of St. Paul, Indiana, plays on his high school basketball, baseball and track teams and helps dad run a 200 acre farm.

St. Paul, Minn.—Despairing of ever becoming a grand opera star Frank A. Schimansky, 52, postal clerk, leaped to his death from a high bridge. He recently declined a soloist position at New York's largest movie theater. He wanted opera.

Bloomington, Ill—A Chicago & Alton wrecker crew had a sticky time when two carloads of molasses spilled over the tracks and "gummed up" traffic for five hours. Eight other cars were derailed.

Merry Christmas and Good Health

BUY HEALTH SEALS. FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Every community must depend on its citizens for public health service. It is a matter in which all share, and to which all should contribute. The Christmas Seal is an opportunity. Everybody can buy. Seventy-five cents from each dollar raised remains in the community to be expended in local health work.

When you buy Christmas Seals and Health Bonds you buy health service. The more you buy, the greater the service. The sale of Christmas Seals makes possible the Nursing Service; Medical and Sanatorium Service; the Modern Health Crusade; Health Education in the Home and School; Open-air Schools; Nutrition Classes; health literature, speakers, plays, pageants, games, drills, posters, pictures, songs, etc.

The big program in the cure and prevention of sickness is supported by Christmas Seal Funds. The greater the sale the better the health program in your county.

FUNERAL FORMER POLO MAN HELD THERE TUESDAY

Edgar Hicks, Husband of Dixon Lady, is Laid to Rest

Polo—Edgar O. Hicks was born in Sterling, Sept. 15, 1885 and died at Iowa City, Iowa, Sunday, Nov. 29, 1925. The remains were brought to the home of his brother Lester Hicks of Polo, Monday, and funeral services were held from there Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock with interment in Fairmount cemetery. Rev. Dwight P. Bair of the Lutheran church officiated. Deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hicks and lived in Polo about 15 years, going from here to Iowa. He was married to Miss Elsie Zunk of Dixon about 17 years ago. Besides his widow he is survived by two daughters and one son, his father William Hicks, of Polo, two brothers Jerry of California, Lester of Polo, two sisters, Mrs. Addie Long of Haldane and Mrs. Elsie Fry of Polo.

The fire department was called out Saturday afternoon to extinguish a blaze at the Guy Waterbury home. A spark from the chimney burned a hole in the roof about 7 feet square. The department was also called out Monday morning to extinguish a chimney fire at the Dan Beard home. There was but little damage done.

Mrs. Jesse McIlnay and son Roland were Sterling callers Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gilbert spent Wednesday afternoon at Oregon.

Mrs. J. R. Feniger of Peoria who was called here by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Martha Johnson, returned to her home Wednesday. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss June Miller. Scott Miller returned to his home at Madison, Wis., Thursday.

Mrs. A. G. Courcey, Mrs. Margaret Savage, Miss Grace Garman and Miss Maud Dodge spent Tuesday in Freeport.

Miss Maud Powell returned home last Saturday from a Freeport hospital where she recently underwent an operation.

Otto Johnson of Alto, Iowa, who was called here by the death of his sister in law, Mrs. C. A. Johnson, returned to his home Wednesday.

Mrs. Katherine Straw of Rock Island spent Sunday in Polo.

A. D. Hannon purchased the property on North Franklin Street Monday, formerly known as the William Sanford home.

Mrs. William Diehl was operated on at the Deaconess hospital in Freeport Monday.

Fred Becker attended the live stock show in Chicago, Wednesday.

Mrs. A. H. Hanneken of Dixon spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Shank.

Mrs. John Rohrer went to Mt. Morris Thursday.—K.

IN NEW YORK

New York—Seesawing up and down Broadway I did see a great throng gathered before the Selwyn Theater and bursting my way through, discovered the cause of commotion to be nothing more than a great red carpet spread upon the pavement so that milady's delicate slippers would not be soiled when she stepped from her cab to attend a first night performance ....And be it known that a red carpet will ever attract a throng of city yokels, inasmuch as it betokens that notables of the society world are expected..........Saw Harry Archer, who not so long ago was a student at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., where he thumped pianos at fraternity house parties, after going to Princeton University where he organized an orchestra. And with him was Harlan Thompson, once a newspaper reporter, and now both roll in wealth, having written three musical hits, "Little Jesse James," "My Girl" and "Merry Merry"........... One block beyond I saw two other lads, just out of Columbia University, Richard Rogers and Lorenz Hart, and already they have two successes to their names, "Dearest Enemy" and "The Garrick Gaieties"...............

Saw Francis X. Bushman, now a grandpa, and surely this encounter maketh me feel the passing of the years.......Saw Fay Lanphier, otherwise "Miss America," dancing in a night club with "Abie the Agent," otherwise Harry Hirshfield.................Seem to see the exotic Nazimova wherever I go these days, whether it be a first night at theater or a night club, and it seemeth to me that while she retains the fire of yore, time hath begun to exact its due..........Saw Gloria Swanson at an opening night and they did tell me she was offered a box but spurned it "because it would attract too much attention"............

Saw Senator Ralston, from Virginia, and they telleth me he was an honored guest at a night club named after one of the southern states........Saw Wm. K. Vanderbilt playing host to a large party at the Club Mirador..........

Broadway is getting the Florida bug.

Waiters, entertainers, orchestras, cafe owners, salesgirls, actors, millionaires or what have you have started such a trek that the night life of the great winter resorts soon will be flooded with Broadwayites.

Wise ones wink and predict that many will come walking back. Competition is likely to be so strong that only the hardiest will survive, they say.

However, some already are splitting large sums said to have been made in real estate. I am told that Florence Mills, the amazing young colored entertainer, has cleaned up something like $200,000 and that Thomas Meighan, the movie star, has been fishing a bit and caught something like $100,000.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOT BALL PLAYERS ARE GUESTS AT BANQUET

Fine Supper and Talk by Judge Edwards are Enjoyed

The Dixon high school football team, champions of the Rock River Valley conference this year, were dined and entertained in the same manner in which they played football this season, when they sat down to the tables in the dining hall at the Elks club last evening as guests of that lodge. Delicacies that the athletes have been deprived of for weeks were spread before thm in lavish style. Roast turkey was the main course, around which a bounteous repast was formed and served by the house committee. The athletes and high school faculty were guests of the sports and athletics committee of the lodge.

Following the supper, Exalted Ruler Milo Stratton turned the program over at Attorney H. C. Warner, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Judge Harry Edwards. It developed that the judge was a member of the first high school football squad in Dixon. He related some of the incidents which confronted the team and coaches of that day when they were without equipment and had but slight knowledge of the game. In order to obtain equipment the individual members of the team solicited business houses and met with many reverses due to the unpopularity of the game at that time.

Looked Upon As Brutal.

Forward passes and open play pere unknown, the mass formation and flying wedge being the popular style of attack. The game was looked upon as a brutal pastime and akin to prize fighting. It was looked upon by the high school faculty with disfavor and was discouraged by the public. The first year the game was introduced in the Dixon schools, the judge said, there were teams in both the north and south side high schools. After a brief and stormy season, the two teams united before the close of the season. Today there are living in Dixon but four members of that squad: Guy Miller and Angier Wilson on the north side and Dick Bovey and Judge Edwards on the south side.

The public was not in sympathy with the sport and refused to lend its support. Today it is on the threshold of becoming the national sport of America. If it continues to grow in the next five years as it has in the past, it will supersede baseball, which is now looked upon as the national sport.

Praised Athletes

You members of this championship squad are a credit to Dixon and we are proud of you and your accomplishment the Judge said, not only because you have not permitted your goal line to be crossed and have won every game, but because you have been clean, manly and sportsmanlike in every way. Athletics in a high school or any institution are a detriment if they are not builders of character and determination. It develops the candidate to meet the battles of life with a determination to win in face of reverses and losses. You young men represent the best citizenship of our city and community and the community is proud of you. We are proud of these capable coaches who have built up this championship organization. In closing let me admonish you against one thing to those of you who have not completed the school course and who will return next year as members of the football team do not lose sight of your scholastic duties in your eagerness to become athletes or by your over-indulgence in athletics.

Winston "Wink" McReynolds, the Grange of the championship team, accompanied by Paul Bruckner, Jr., at the piano, after much persuasion on the part of his team mates furnished an entertaining feature. Captain Gus Bondi thanked the Elks lodge in behalf of the team for the banquet and Coach Arthur C. Bowers introduced each individual of the team and closed the evening of entertaining with a short talk.

TULANE MAY GO WEST TO TACKLE COAST CHAMPION

New Year's Day Battle at Pasadena Under Consideration

Chicago, Dec. 4—(AP)—The entry of Tulane, undefeated in football, into the annual Tournament of Roses contest at Pasadena on New Year's Day, may be accepted or rejected when Clark D. Shaughnessy, Tulane coach, and Jack Bienfiel, representing the Pacific Coast Conference, meet here today.

Other intersectional clashes next year are looked for to come from the meeting of athletic directors and coaches of the Western Conference directors and coaches of the Western Conference directors of football to arrange schedules, Missouri Valley coaches and representatives of eastern and far western teams also are here to angle for Big Ten opponents.

Intersectional games already arranged in hang-over contracts are Chicago-Pennsylvania, Illinois-Pennsylvania, Michigan-Navy, Northwestern-Notre Dame and Minnesota-Notre Dame. Chicago is reported after a game with West Point; Minnesota with West Virginia or Alabama and Ohio State with Columbia. Southern California and Tulane want to come into the midwest.

Want Big Ten Games

Minnesota and Iowa have eyes on better conference schedules, the Gophers having been able to book only three Big Ten teams last year. The schedules will be drawn tomorrow.

Professionalism, brought to the fore by the recent entrance into professional football by "Red" Grange and Earl Britton, Illinois players, figures prominently in discussions. Athletic directors yesterday held a private meeting and refused to say what was taken up but it was understood the professional menace was considered.

Brief reference to the topic also Coaches. Hawley, mentor at Dartwas made last night at a banquet of mouth, said there might come a time when all the friends of the intercollegiate game might need to be rallied to its support. Rockne of Notre Dame called "yelping alumni" the greatest danger to football today," and Stagg, Chicago's "Old Man" said he hoped he would not be retired until "my teeth fall out." He is 62.

HAGENLACHER IN PROTEST; HOLDS SCHAEFER'S OUT

Insists Horemans is Bound to Meet Him in Next Match

New York, Dec. 4—(AP)—Eric Hagenlacher of Germany has entered protests against the proposed return 18.2 balkline billiard championship match between the new king, Edouard Horemans of Belgium, and Jake Schaefer, who was ousted by the Belgian in Chicago this week.

Hagenlacher claims that Horemans was outgeneraled in Chicago when he agreed to meet Schaefer within a month after the latter had protested a decision of the referee and threatened to quit the contest.

At the conclusion of the last world's championship tournament in Chicago last February the six contestants agreed that hereafter a champion must defend his title every three months. Those who signed the agreement, in the order of their finishing in the tournament, were Schaefer, Horemans, Hagenlacher, Hoppe, Cochrane and Suzuki.

Under this arrangement, Horemans was to be the first challenger with Hagenlacher following in March. Hoppe would obtain another chance following Hagenlacher's effort.

Hagenlacher contends that under the agreement, his opponent next March must be Horemans and that all others who signed it will have their chance at the title before Schaefer sees another opportunity. In case Horemans and Schaefer meet again a month from now, he says, he will have to beat Horemans and then Schaefer to gain recognition.

The telegraphic code for an entry in the New Orleans races "77", the number made famous on the gridiron by Red Grange, attracted hundreds of wagers in Chicago handbooks. The entry, Stone Age, won at odds of 10-1.

Friends of Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, recent contender for the worlds heavyweight championship, say he will be a candidate for Sheriff of the county next year, but Tommy declines to comment.

Reggie Brown, back field coach for Brown University, holds that there is no aerial attack devised that cannot be stopped by a shrewdly coached eleven. He points out that Brown this year stopped the forward passing of Dartmouth.

Plans for a million dollar athletic stadium modelled after Soldiers Field, Chicago's municipal field, have been outlined by Chicago north and west side citizens. Parks, boulevards and athletic facilities are included in the plan.

Hi Miller, attorney, has brought suit against the Pittsburgh Athletic Company operating the local National League baseball club, to recover $300 damages as a result of his failure to get tickets for the worlds series games between Pittsburgh and Washington.

Agnes Gerahty, of the New York Swimming Association, clipped two seconds from her own worlds record for the 100 yard breast stroke competition in a 75 foot pool at Detroit, when she covered the distance in 23 3-5 seconds.

A schedule committee of three will draft a new American Association playing chart which will be submitted to the club owners for a mail vote, but did not decide on a schedule.

All-Star Teams to Play for Children's Hospital

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 4—(AP)—Every section of the country will be represented in the all-star amateur football team that Coach "Navy Bill" Ingram of Indiana will lead to the University of California stadium in Berkeley Dec. 26 against a western all-star eleven. Proceeds of the game will go to the Children's Hospital of San Francisco.

Jack Spalding, formerly of Syracuse, is in charge of the western eleven. Ingram's squad starts practice in Bloomington on Dec. 14 and leaves Chicago for the coast on Dec. 20. His squad will be:

Ends—Tully of Dartmouth, Bilweg, Marquette and Weir, Nebraska.

Tackles—Edwards, Michigan and Parker, Dartmouth.

Guards—Farwick, Army; Slaughter, Michigan and Diehl, Dartmouth.

Center—Garbisch, Army and Hutchinson, Nebraska.

Quarterback—McPhail, Dartmouth.

Backs—Pond, Yale; Wyckoff, Georgia Tech; Tryon, Colgate; Hubert, Alabama and probably Martineau, Minnesota.

None of the players nor coaches will be paid, the Islam Temple of the Mystic Shrine, promoters, paying the expenses.

Dartmouth Prevails in All Experts' Selections

New York, Dec. 4—(AP)—Dartmouth, already dominating most of the mythical all-star football teams chosen so far, places four men on the all-eastern eleven selected for the Associated Press by Ray Van Orman, athletic director and head coach Johns Hopkins University. Yale Princeton each get two places in following lineup:

Ends: Tully, Dartmouth and Hanson, Syracuse.

Tackles: Joss, Yale and Parker, Dartmouth.

Guards: Diehl, Dartmouth and Sturhahan, Yale.

Center—McMillan, Princeton.

Quarterback— Pease, Columbia.

Halfbacks—Slagle, Princeton and Tryon, Colgate.

Fullback—Oberlander, Dartmouth.

IN NEW YORK

New York—See-sawing up and down Broadway I did see a great throng gathered before the Selwyn Theater and bursting my way through, discovered the cause of commotion to be nothing more than a great red carpet spread upon the pavement so that milady's delicate slippers would not be soiled when she stepped from her cab to attend a first night performance ....And be it known that a red carpet will ever attract a throng of city yokels, inasmuch as it betokens that notables of the society world are expected........Saw Harry Archer, who not so long ago was a student at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill., where he thumped pianos at fraternity house parties, later going to Princeton University where he organized an orchestra. And with him was Harlan Thompson, once a newspaper reporter, and now both roll in wealth, having written three musical hits, "Little Jesse James," "My Girl" and "Merry Merry"........ One block beyond I saw two other lads, just out of Columbia University, Richard Rogers and Lorenz Hart, and already they have two successes to their names, "Dearest Enemy" and "The Garrick Gaieties"..............

Saw Francis X. Bushman, now a grandpa, and surely this encounter maketh me feel the passing of the years........Saw Fay Lanphier, otherwise "Miss America," dancing in a night club with "Abie the Agent," otherwise Harry Hirshfield............... Seem to see the exotic Nazimova wherever I go these days, whether it be a first night at theater or a night club, and it seemeth to me that while she retains the fire of yore, time hath begun to exact its due.........Saw Gloria Swanson at an opening night and they did tell me she was offered a box but spurned it "because it would attract too much attention"...........

Saw Senator Ralston, from Virginia, and they telleth me he was an honored guest at a night club named after one of the southern states........ Saw Wm. K. Vanderbilt playing host to a large party at the Club Mirador.........

Broadway is getting the Florida bug.

Waiters, entertainers, orchestras, cafe owners, salesgirls, actors, millionaires or what have you have started such a trek that the night life of the great winter resorts soon will be flooded with Broadwayites.

Wise ones wink and predict that many will come walking back. Competition is likely to be so strong that only the hardiest will survive, they say.

However, some already are splitting large sums said to have been made in real estate. I am told that Florence Mills, the amazing young colored entertainer, has cleaned up something like $200,000 and that Thomas Meighan, the movie star, has been fishing a bit and caught something like $100,000.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOT BALL PLAYERS ARE GUESTS AT BANQUET

Fine Supper and Talk by Judge Edwards are Enjoyed

The Dixon high school football team, champions of the Rock River Valley conference this year, were dined and entertained in the same manner in which they played football this season, when they sat down to the tables in the dining hall at the Elks club last evening as guests of that lodge. Delicacies that the athletes have been deprived of for weeks were spread before thm in lavish style. Roast turkey was the main course, around which a bounteous repast was formed and served by the house committee. The athletes and high school faculty were guests of the sports and athletics committee of the lodge.

Following the supper, Exalted Ruler Milo Stratton turned the program over at Attorney H. C. Warner, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Judge Harry Edwards. It developed that the judge was a member of the first high school football squad in Dixon. He related some of the incidents which confronted the team and coaches of that day when they were without equipment and had but slight knowledge of the game. In order to obtain equipment the individual members of the team solicited business houses and met with many reverses due to the unpopularity of the game at that time.

Looked Upon As Brutal.

Forward passes and open play were unknown, the mass formation and flying wedge being the popular style of attack. The game was looked upon as a brutal pastime and akin to prize fighting. It was looked upon by the high school faculty with disfavor and was discouraged by the public. The first year the game was introduced in the Dixon schools, the judge said, there were teams in both the north and south side high schools. After a brief and stormy season, the two teams united before the close of the season. Today there are living in Dixon but four members of that squad: Guy Miller and Angier Wilson on the north side and Dick Bovey and Judge Edwards on the south side.

The public was not in sympathy with the sport and refused to lend its support. Today it is on the threshold of becoming the national sport of America. If it continues to grow in the next five years as it has in the past, it will supersede baseball, which is now looked upon as the national sport.

Praised Athletes

You members of this championship squad are a credit to Dixon and we are proud of you and your accomplishment the Judge said, not only because you have not permitted your goal line to be crossed and have won every game, but because you have been clean, manly and sportsmanlike in every way. Athletics in a high school or any institution are a detriment if they are not builders of character and determination. It develops the candidate to meet the battles of life with a determination to win in face of reverses and losses. You young men represent the best citizenship of our city and community and the community is proud of you. We are proud of these capable coaches who have built up this championship organization. In closing let me admonish you against one thing to those of you who have not completed the school course and who will return next year as members of the football team do not lose sight of your scholastic duties in your eagerness to become athletes or by your over-indulgence in athletics.

Winston "Wink" McReynolds, the Grange of the championship team, accompanied by Paul Bruckner, Jr., at the piano, after much persuasion on the part of his team mates furnished an entertaining feature. Captain Gus Bondi thanked the Elks lodge in behalf of the team for the banquet and Coach Arthur C. Bowers introduced each individual of the team and closed the evening of entertaining with a short talk.

Graded Sunday school and Bible class at 9:30 a. m. Lesson subject: "How Rapidly Sin Increased."

Regular morning worship with preaching at 10:30 a. m. The sermon subject: "Christ's Second Coming and Judgment."

The confirmation class will meet at the church Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. Please note the change in time.

All children that wish to take part in the Christmas program are asked to assemble at the church Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. It will be important to have all children present so that we can group them properly according to class and size.

Don't forget the bazaar and chicken supper Saturday, Dec. 5th at the W. R. C. hall.

PINE CREEK CHURCH OF BRETHREN

Sunday School 10 a. m.

At 11 a. m. a missionary program will be rendered by the children, at which time they will make up a missionary collection of money they have earned during the summer. In the spring each child was given a dime to invest, and now this money is to be used to help build a hospital in Danhu, India. This hospital is being built by the children, alone, in the U. S. and our children here at the Pine Creek church are helping. Come and enjoy their program.

In the evening the opening exercises will be conducted by the children followed by a sermon by the pastor to the children.

Many of our young people are planning to go to the Young Peoples' Conference to be held in Dixon Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

H. U. Hoefle, Pastor.

10:30 a. m., Divine worship. The Rev. John Hoerner will bring the message of the morning. Holy Communion will be served.

Worships renews the spirit as sleep renwes the body. Our souls as well as our bodies get drained, now and again of our available energy. The tired spirit finds a waning interest in familiar tasks, even contempt may be bred by this ingrowing familiarity. • • • • Worship is the self-conscious part of the natural recovery of value in life when it has grown stale. For worship is the conscious love of the spirit, and we need it regularly like sleep or food.—Richard C. Cabot in "What Men Live By."

To all the services of this church you are cordially invited. M. A. Goss, pastor.

KINGDOM EVANGELICAL CHURCH.

10 a. m., Sunday school. Topic, "Paul's Voyage and Shipwreck." Acts 27:30-44.

The Annual Meeting of the Church will be held on Wednesday next and will be preceded by a scramble supper. The annual election of office bearers will take place. Will all our church members and friends do their best to be present.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION MEETING

Next Monday morning, 10 o'clock, at the Y. M. C. A., the regular session of the Dixon Ministers' Association will be addressed by Mr. Clinton Fahrney, organist for several years of the Dixon Episcopal Church, on the subject of "Music in the Church." Not only the pastors and other religious workers of Dixon are welcome, but those in neighboring towns and parishes are also invited. Mr. Fahrney's long and faithful connection with Dixon church life, and his marked ability as piano and organ instructor, along with his splendid tenor voice, combine to make him a very apt choice by the ministers to discuss the subject for their December meeting.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

In the absence of the pastor, in the Rock Falls revival, the sermons in the Dixon pulpit Sunday will be delivered by Mr. Shiffer, Rock Falls pastor. In the morning his address will deal with Woman's Work in the church, it being the Annual Woman's Day Service. The annual Thank-offering for Woman's Missionary Societies will be received following the sermon.

In the Bible School session, 9:30, the delegates to the Champaign Y. M. C. A. Older Boys' Conference will make their reports of this wonderful assembly of nearly twelve hundred boys from all over Illinois.

Christian Endeavor meeting at 6:30 will be the monthly Consecration Meeting with offering and roll call. Evening preaching is at 7:30.

COLONY SERVICE

The Sunday afternoon religious service on the grounds of the Dixon State Hospital, for patients and employees, will be in charge of Secretary H. V. Hunt of the Dixon Y. M. C. A. It will begin, as usual, at three o'clock.

HARD ON BANK ROBBERS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3—(AP)—Policy of strict treatment of bank robbers on their applications for parole, was indicated by the state division of Pardons and Paroles, upon return from a hearing at the Southern Illinois Penitentiary where eleven life sentences for bank robbers were sustained.

This attitude was induced by the number of bank robberies in Illinois and the belief that old offenders return to old habits. It follows the organized campaign against robbers, started by the Illinois Bankers, and the action of the Illinois legislature in authorizing rewards for arrest of bank robbers dead or alive.

MAJ. RAND PROMOTED

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3—(AP)—Maj. Frederick E. Rand, executive at headquarters of the 54th infantry brigade, Chicago, was promoted to be colonel in command of the 132nd infantry, Chicago, by Adjutant General Black today. He succeeds William E. Swanson, retired.

"Turken" is Name of New Holiday Poultry

Des Moines, Ia.—The latest style in barnyard fowls, the "turken," produced by crossing a turkey and a chicken, will be shown at the poultry show here next week, when ten specimens will be exhibited. Roy Beck, breeder of the new poultry pybrid believes that next November it will be the "turken's" turn to crow—at 70 to 80c a pound. The meat is said to be predominately turkey in flavor but of more delicate and finer texture.

Half the world is half asleep

It is terrible to feel all dragged out—to live from one day to the next in a constant state of weariness. Yet thousands do, because constipation is destroying their energy—even their interest in life. Only Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

Fired because he was always tired

"DROWSY Bill," they called him—a lifeless, eternally tired, old-young man. He tried hard enough, but his energies always sagged before the job was done. One day Bill was missing . . . fired.

In every walk of life you'll find men and women who are fighting constipation—the dread disease which robs the body of its energy and strength. But thank goodness, there is pleasant, safe, permanent relief from constipation—Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is what doctors call a bulk food. As it journeys through the body, its fiber remains unchanged. Therefore, it can sweep the intestine clean. ALL-BRAN also absorbs and carries moisture through the intestinal tract, thus stimulating regular, healthy action. ALL-BRAN urges nature to act normally—something that habit-forming pills and drugs can never do.

Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals or cooked with hot cereals. Delicious with fruit. Also use the many recipes given on every package. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Be careful! Only ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Be sure to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. A part-bran product is only partially effective—maybe not at all. Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. All grocers sell it. Served in leading hotels and restaurants. Buy a package today.

SEVERAL CASES OF IMPORTANCE BEFORE COURT

Supreme Court Meets in Big Session Next Tuesday

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Several big cases have focused state wide attention on the December term of the Supreme Court, which opened here Tuesday and will continue in session until about December 17. Among the big cases to be heard or probably decided are the following:

The civil suit againt Governor Len Small.

Suit to compel the legislature to reapportion the state as provided in the constitution.

Suit to decide whether Illinois women may serve on juries.

The Leland divorce case, involving Dr. Carl Case, former Chicago preacher.

Right of State Highway Superintendent to make changes in hard road routes as outlined by legislature.

Right of Illinois Commerce Commission to hold all hearings either in Springfield or Chicago, instead of in counties of origin as at present.

Whether a decision of the civil suit against Gevornor Small will be handed down cannot be determined before the term ends. This suit, based on the same grounds as the criminal suit in Waukegan, where the governor was acquitted, asks that he be required to account for approximately one million dollars state tax money alleged withheld while he was state treasurer.

It is believed that the majority opinion of the court, which decides the case, is already written. Last term the court indicated it would hand down the decision then, but some last minute development changed its plan.

Of equal interest is the Fergus suit to compel the legislature to re-apportion the state, as provided in the constitution. Briefs have been filed by both sides to the suit, and oral arguments will be heard by the court on December 15. This suit is resisted by downstate legislators on the ground that the Supreme Court has no power to compel the legislative branch to do anything.

For the College Boy or Girl—A box of engraved Calling Cards is a nice gift. Drop in and see our samples.

Dr. Cummings' Health Column

BY DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Surgeon General, U. S. Public Health Service

Why does one have a headache?

There are many headaches and many causes of headache.

A headache which results from a blow on the head is easily understood, but you can be reasonably sure that any other headache means that you are violating the declicate mechanism of your body. You should immediately begin a seach to find the trouble. If you can not find it yourself, you should get an expert to help you, namely, a physician.

Throbbing headaches, general in character, often mean indiscretions in diet, sometimes too much protein, too much starch or too much sugar —or, sometimes, too much of all three.

At other times, it may be due to the fact that the food has been kept to long or has not been kept cold enough and is partially spoiled. Throbbing headaches may also be due to high blood pressure, with or without indiscretion in diet. Severe paroxysmal or periodic headaches are suggestive of neuralgia.

Pain just over the eyes indicates an infection of the frontal sinuses following a cold.

Again, the pain may be in the back of the head or in the top of the head. In kidney diseases, headache may be frontal or it maybe in the back of the head. In tumor of the brain, abcess of the brain, or in middle ear, or mastoid disease, the pain may be on one side only.

Pain and soreness in the muscles an tendons of the back of the neck should not be confused with headache.

Headache associated with disease of the brain is usually persistent and becomes worse at night and may wake the patient. A headache experienced on rising early in the morning may be due to a stuffy, ill-ventilated or overheated room. Evening headaches are often associated with mental overwork or eye strain, especially when errors in refraction exist. Proper glasses usually give prompt relief to headaches due to errors in refraction.

A headache is a danger signal that should not be ignored. It is a symptom and should not be treated as a disease.

Of course it is possible for you to go to any drug store and ask the clerk to give you something for a headache. The clerk may spread before you a dozen headache cures, every one of them guaranteed to cure you, some in half an hour, some before you leave the store. There are a number of drugs that will relieve a headache for the time being, but death has sometimes resulted from the abuse of such remedies and more often, instead of being cured, the headache has simply been masked and the disease or condition producing it, progresses utnil it has become serious.

Do not then, neglect a headache. If you cannot avoid headaches by regular habits and close attention to diet and to the ventilation of your bedrooms, your offices or workrooms, then go to a good physician.

INCREASED COST OF GOVERNMENT SHOWN BY DATA

Chicago, Dec. 3—(AP)—The increased cost of state government is graphically shown in comparative tables from many midwestern states. In many cases state expenditures have doubled since 1918.

In Illinois, the general revenue fund for this year was $27,842,426, while in 1918 it was only $15,667,209. The total state expenses, including soldiers' compensation, university, state schools, etc., for 1925 was $98,808,422 whereas in 1918 it was $23,454,467.

The total disbursements in Wisconsin this year were approximately $37,000,000 as compared with $18,000,000 in 1918. Much of the funds, however, are returned to the local governments, so that the expenditures for the state university, normal schools, eleemosynary institutions, courts and all of the state departments will be approximately $16,000,000 this year. In 1918, they were about $9,500,000.

State expenses in Iowa have continued to increase until this year when $17,770,000 was collected from its citizens, or $7.68 per capita. In 1918, Iowa spent $10,854,666 which averaged down to $4.59 per capita. Through economies and reduced costs however, E. L. Hogue, director of the budget, expects the 1926 figures to be trimmed to $14,189,961.

State expenditures for Indiana this year were $35,751,164 while in 1918 the Hoosier state's cost of government was $16,113,971. The tax rate for the state however, shows a seven cent reduction from the war time peak of 35 cents in 1918 to 28 cents this year.

TO REHABILITATE RAILROAD

Washington, Dec. 3—(AP)—Financial proposals designed to return to operation sections of the now abandoned railroad of the Chiago Peoria & St. Louis line were submitted for approval today to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The C. P. & St. L. and the Jacksonville & Havana Railroad Companies new corporations, asked the commission to permit the issue of new securities for the purpose. The Springfield company desires to operate 78 miles of the former Peoria line between Springfield and Lock Haven, both in Illinois, and estimated it would have to sell $1,025,000 in bonds and stock to carry out the project. The Havana company, which proposes to take over 41 miles of the Peoria line between Jacksonville and Havana, both in Illinois, asked the approval of an issue of $625,000 in bonds and stock.

EDITOR LOST APPEAL

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3—(AP)—Arthur Lorenz, editorial writer for a German language newspaper in Chicago today was refused a re-hearing in the supreme court on his appeal from conviction for libelling the American Legion.

His answer to the charge was that he had not criticized anyone in particular, but the group as a whole. The supreme court last term upheld his fine and sentence, on the ground that the editorial complained of was libel, and today refused to reconsider.

SALESMAN IS KILLED

Windsor, Ill., Dec. 3—(AP)—Leo Wyobeck of New York City, a salesman for a film concern with headquarters in St. Louis was instantly killed Wednesday evening when his sedan collided with the rear end of a truck, stalled on the hard road near here. The top of the sedan was sheared off and the auto plowed under the big truck. Bright lights are said to have blinded him just before hitting the truck.

Leaders of Washington Society Disagree on How to Solve Love-Career Problem

By NEA Service.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Love and marriage or a career and spinsterhood?

The youngest, prettiest woman, whose husband is a member of President Coolidge's cabinet, thinks a girl should ask herself this question before she choose either:

"For the ordinary woman," says Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the U. S. secretary of labor, "I think marriage is the ideal existence.

"For the woman of extraordinary natural gifts, the problem is different. If she believes she has enough ability to justify giving up everything else for a career, then she should have the courage to forego love and marriage.

"But she should be very sure."

Mrs. Davis, besides being the youngest and handsomest woman in the cabinet, also has a good-sized family—four children, all of them young.

Her marriage was a love match and a real romance. Mrs. Davis was a young business woman in Pittsburg. She became her future husband's private secretary. He fell in love with her and they were married.

Secretary Davis celebrated his 51st birthday not long ago. Mrs. Davis is at least 15 years his junior.

MRS. BILLY MITCHELL.

Mrs. Billy Mitchell, wife of the fighting army flier, thinks it all depends on a woman's individuality, whether she should choose love or a career.

There's no hard and fast rule by which this question can be decided," says the good looking young wife of the man now on trial by army court-martial.

"I believe every woman has to decide it for herself," she says.

Miss Alice Paul

"What is best for one, isn't best for another. Personality is the thing that counts, more than ability or lack of ability.

"Personally some women are better suited for marriage than a career. Others are not."

Colonel and Mrs. Mitchell have been married about two years and spent the first year on a honeymoon trip around the world.

She is a charming young woman, an expert horsewoman and socially accomplished. She has one child, a baby born a few weeks before the air service row began.

ALICE PAUL SAYS.

"Nobody asks a man to choose between love and a career. A woman should no more have to make this choice than a man.

"In the world today, this conflict does exist. It's difficult for women to marry without losing their own individuality and their own individual life. But some time, when inequalities between the sexes are abolished, they will not be forced to sacrifice one thing or the other."

Mrs. Billy Mitchell

This is the answer of America's leading feminist, Alice Paul, vice president of the National Woman's Party, to the question—love or a career?

Mrs. James J. Davis

So far, Miss Paul apparently has chosen the latter for herself. America's chief exponent of the theory of equal rights for the sexes, she has devoted her life to the cause of women.

Working first for suffrage, she was instrumental in having the suffrage amendment adopted. Now her party has not only introduced into Congress a constitutional amendment which would make men and women absolutely equal under the law, but also has taken steps toward a world-wide union of women for international equal rights.

"No law or custom," she says, "should be allowed to bar women on account of marriage from any occupation or profession.

"A nine-dollar-a-week job or a professional or artistic career—woman should have as much right as man to combine any kind of work she chooses with love and marriage."

"GOLDEN RULE" SUNDAY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

People of Community Asked to Aid Near East Relief

Three thousand personal message envelopes are being distributed to the homes of the people of Dixon and community this week by the Boy Scouts and the rural mail carriers, asking aid for the Near East Relief fund. The ringing of bells and blowing of whistles at 12 o'clock noon Sunday, will remind everyone of Golden Rule Sunday and the pitiful cry of thousands of children in the Bible lands, who, through cruel war, ask for bread and clothing and shelter, without which great numbers must perish this winter.

Surely everyone can enclose and seal in these envelopes at least the price of one good dinner or some unnecessary luxury for the time without any sacrifice. And it is hoped that many will esteem it a privilege to generously help in larger measure in the ways described in the packet envelopes.

These envelopes will be called for Sunday afternoon and donors are asked to have them ready for the Scout collectors. If anyone is overlooked or is not at home the envelopes can be sent to John E. Moyer, postmaster, who is treasurer of the local committee. Those in the rural districts are asked to enclose their offerings in the addressed envelopes inserted in the packets and to mail in their mail boxes during the coming week.

NEWS FROM DIXON YMCA

Hi-Y Club Members Give Talks in Dixon Schools

Thursday at the regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club at the Y. M. C. A., President Gordon McNicol and Chas. Keyes gave reports on the recent Older Boys' Conference at Champaign-Urbana. Time did not permit other delegates reporting, but these will be given next week at the meeting.

Requests were made from the Near East Relief Committee, asking the club to supply eight boys who would address the grade schools of the city on the Near East Relief Work. The President appointed the following members who made their talks Friday: Carl Buchner, Chas. Keyes, Neil Reagan, John Lockett, Oliver Rogers, Jr., Lyle Prescott, Fred Hofman and Earl Larkin.

Committees were also appointed to take charge of the banquet next week when the Sterling Hi-Y club and their lady friends will be the guests of honor.

Four New Members Voted Into Toastmasters' Club

Another enthusiastic meeting of the Toastmasters' Club was held Thursday evening in the Y. M. C. A. banquet room. Four new members were initiated into the club by the initiation committee: E. L. Martin, LeRoy Clingman, LaVere Shepherd and C. A. Buchner. Two new names were handed in for membership and these, according to the rules of the club, will be voted on next week.

The lesson in Parliamentary Law was given by "Walt" Spindler and the test by Roy Webb. It proved a very beneficial meeting in every respect and the new method of having members give the the Parliamentary Law lesson and the criticizms followed by A. G. Harris proved a success.

The initiation ceremony committee, of which E. C. Kennedy is chairman, go to Sterling Friday evening, where they will have charge of the initiation of thirteen new members in the Sterling Toastmasters' Club.

Plan Second Rounds of Ass'n. Bowling Leagues

The Bowling League captains in the Church and Industrial Leagues will meet Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A., to discuss ways and means of making the second round of the leagues as interesting as possible. Some of the teams have not been as prompt in appearance as they should have been when the schedule stated they should play.

The following men are expected to report: Chapman, Gerdes, Stultz Stauffer, Palmer, Edous, Detweiler, and Miller of Franklin Grove.

The first game of the second round [illegible] the Church League will be bowled [illegible]sday night at 7:30 when the Lu[illegible]ans and Methodists meet.

Bloomington Wants I. A. A. to Meet in That City

Bloomington, Ill.,—AP)—The Illinois Agricultural Association is urged to hold its 1926 annual meeting here in resolutions adopted by farm bureau representatives of the 17th congressional district. The 1925 annual meeting will be held at Urbana on January 21-22. Pekin is working for the 1926 annual picnic of the state farm bureau association.

Another resolution endorsed the plan being executed by the I. A. A. for unifying the work of the 240 farm mutual fire insurance companies through a state mutual reinsurance company. Mr. V. Vaniman of the I. A. A. explained that the action of reinsuring the larger risks through the state company will permit the smallest farm mutual to insure the largest farm risks safely. Classification of property was urged in the program for more efficient farm mutual insurance.

The proposition of Kenneth-Murry Company, livestock order-buyers who are now operating in 14 markets, to lease the C. & A. stock yards here and buy hogs and cattle through local commission companies, was discussed by the farm bureau representatives. Although not so sure that they could approve of the plan due to lack of competion in buying, they decided that if it goes through the farmers must organize one of the commission companies. They were urged to do so by agents of the Kenneth Murry organization when the plan was first announced.

SCARLET FEVER TRIPLED IN SIX WEEKS IN STATE

State Dept. of Health Issues Bulletin on Prevalent Disease

Springfield— With approximately 1000 persons in the state down with scarlet fever a number three times greater than that six weeks ago and the main season for high prevalence of this disease still two months ahead, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, takes occasion to point out that this malady can now be prevented as well as cured by specific and scientifically sound means. Patients improve with an almost phenomenal rapidity when treated with antitoxin, says the director, while susceptible well children can be made immune in a relatively brief period by the use of scarlet fever toxin. A simple process known as the Dick test may be employed to show which children are susceptible and which are not.

"Running true to form," said Dr. Rawlings, "scarlet fever prevalence is now manifesting a strong upward tendency, the present daily average of 33 case reports being three times what it was six weeks ago. About 1000 persons are now down with the disease in Illinois.

"Scarlet fever usually reaches its greatest monthly prevalence in Illinois during February or March. Last season March was the high month with 2831 cases against 1105 in the preceding November. About 100 cases have been reported for November of this year, suggesting another heavy seasonal incidence this winter.

Specific Treatment

"A specific way for treating scarlet fever patients and for immunizing susceptible persons against this disease is one of the newest achievements of scientific medical research. Scarlet fever antitoxin, very recently placed on the market, but already in general use in such population centers as New York, if used early in the disease gives almost immediate relief to patients ill with the disease, results being equally as gratifying as those that follow the use of antitoxin in diphtheria. By giving scarlet fever toxin to susceptible persons an immunity which lasts for at least a year is said to be established within a week or ten days after the last of three doses is given.

Through a simple process known as the Dick test, which consists of injecting a tiny bit of scarlet fever toxin between the layers of the skin on the fore-arm, doctors can determine within a few hours whether a person is susceptible to scarlet fever or not. About 70 percent of children between one and two years of age are susceptible to scarlet fever, this percentage decreasing with age until less than 25 percent are susceptible after age 10.

"About two out of each 100 cases of scarlet fever terminate fatally. About 9 out of each 100 patients who recover, develop complications such as kidney trouble, disorders of the ear, sometimes causing permanent deafness, and rheumatic conditions. Figured on this basis there are now about 1000 individuals, mostly children, out of the 11,601 who had scarlet fever last year, with permanently impaired health.

"Contrary to past beliefs the desquamation from scarlet fever patient late in that disease has little or nothing to do with spreading the disease. It is transmitted most frequently by direct contact, the germs being expelled from the patient with droplets from the nose or spray from the mouth. It is also spread occasionally through unpasteurized milk."

Polo Youth Head of Cornell Illini Club

Mount Vernon, Ia.———Special—An Illinois club of 100 members has the distinction of being the largest sectional organization at Cornell College. The club has just reorganized for the year and has elected Paul Trump of Polo, President; Iola Isaacs of Gillispie, Vice President; and Birdice Reynolds of Altona, Sec.-Treas.

The club, whose membership is now over the hundred mark, was first organized 20 years ago by 28 students. Forty-three Illinois towns are represented among the present membership. Chicago leads with 13, and Rockford follows with seven. Belvidere and Freeport each claim six, and Sterling, five.

The club exists chiefly as a means of bringing these people together socially, and to interest other Illinois students in the college.

The Dixon students at Cornell are: Kathryn Wright, 204 E. Boyd St.; Cornelia Millar, 821 Peoria Ave.; Nellie Suter, 313 Crawford Ave.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore has swam to shore from a yacht in Long Island Sound. Bugle, a faithful dog, accompanied her. Bugle disappeared from the beach and returned bearing a man's oilskin coat, which Connie was glad enough to put on. Then the dog reappeared bearing a package containing $50,000, which the mysterious Pooch gave her the night before, but which she induced David Lacy to take. And now Lacy himself suddenly presents himself. Connie was much in the company of rum-runners or revenue officers—she doesn't know which—last night.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

"If I have the strength," repeated Connemara. "You are not suggesting walking, are you? Isn't there a team or a car we can use?" And the tone brought tears to Lacy's eyes.

"Not a chance. I'm sorry, but it's walk or stay here."

"All right," Connemara sighed, "I suppose I'll be warmer walking, anyway. Just turn your back until I get this sailor's kimono draped around me—and by the way, I suppose this is yours."

Lacy blushed, although, of course, Connemara couldn't see him. He was rather nicely ingenuous at times for so experienced a young man. Finally Connemara was as well draped as she could be. "All right," she called. "I guess this will do. I'll make you walk ahead of me, and that will give me a little bit more privacy."

"Do you think you'll be able to walk five miles in those?" he asked, pointing to her muddy little silver slippers.

And so they started on their journey. Bugle at their heels.

"Why not? I've danced more than twice that number and never thought much about it. If I can't stand them I can take them off, or at least the heels. Come on."

And so they started on their journey, Bugle at their heels, Connemara mincing along in her little high-heeled slippers, the slicker slapping at her legs like a wet sail, the once carefully wound and jaunty turban now slipped rakishly over to the side of her head, damp and grimy. And Lacy—the always immaculate Lacy, looking like nothing an outfitter of class would use as an ad for "the well-dressed man"—strode on in front, forging ahead one moment and then, as Connemara called out to him, shortening his stride to keep one respectful pace ahead of her.

As they trudged along, Connemara told her experiences and how she and McTish went over the side of the boat, and Lacy recounted the last dive of the Bloody Nuisance and the capture of the Filomena and her company.

"I got away because they thought I was knocked up so badly there wasn't any need of watching me," he wound up.

"Do you believe that Aunt Celimena's in danger?" Connemara asked anxiously.

"Well, of course, she has been safer," he admitted, "but there has been a split in policy between our friend Pooch and the Swede, so I fancy for the present—till tonight, anyhow, they won't take any definite steps one way or the other."

Now they walked in silence. Lacy had led the way along the beach instead of taking the road, and they had come to a stretch of hard sand where they were able to synchronize their gait a little better. Connemara even drew level with Lacy and, slipping her arm through his, allowed herself to be almost towed.

"There is something I want to ask you," she said gravely. "Why did you send me that money by Bugle? You're not sure even now whether I am a crook or not, are you?" And then, as Lacy tried to stutter a reply, she continued: "Oh, you needn't protest, it doesn't matter—but feeling that way I'd like to know why you gave up the money."

"By the way, where is it?" he evaded.

"That's my secret and Bugle's," said Connemara, and she turned to call Bugle but he had disappeared. He may have felt that with Lacy's appearance his responsibility was at an end, and had quietly melted out of the picture like the gentleman he was. Maybe he had gone back to guard the treasure, or maybe he just had a date somewhere. Whatever it was his doggish fancy had turned to, he most certainly was nowhere to be seen.

"Bugle's gone," wailed Connemara.

"He's all right," assured Lacy. "Don't worry about him, he'll turn up some time."

"I hope so. I never had a chance to really thank him for all he did for me. I don't want him to think me ungrateful."

"I'll explain it to him when I see him," said Lacy with a little laugh. That laugh was his mistake, for it brought Connemara right back to her topic. Too many men have made the mistake of laughing and appearing at ease when they thought they had a woman sidetracked from a topic, particularly when a woman develops a one-track mind.

"You haven't answered my question. Why did you give up the money?"

"Well," he faltered, "I am rather given to doing impulsive things. You can understand the feeling better than anyone, I should say. You know what the feeling is when——"

"You're wandering," she warned.

"Well, I'm puzzled about you—curious—so when Bugle came back to me after taking you the slicker, I staged a little experiment that ought to give me the answer to the puzzle of you."

"Go on," Connemara commanded.

"Well, you see"—Lacy was speaking very slowly and accusingly now—"I half believe you're that girl I met at Auteuil only— Well, it's all very confusing and improbable—all the Pooch and Sweetie and Doc business and their being so chummy with you, and especially handing over all that money to you. Oh, I feel like a rotter even saying this to you," he interrupted himself to exclaim in very real distress.

"So, thinking I am a crook, you sent the fifty thousand back to me. It was nice and generous of you—but why?"

"I told you I was impulsive."

"I should say so—fifty thousand dollars!"

"And yet there was a thought back of it all," he went on. "If you really were the girl of Auteuil, I was safe, wasn't I? And if you were mixed up with that gang against your will, there was a nice tidy little sum of money that you probably had as much right to as any of the rest of the gang. Anyway, it gave you a chance to break away, go somewhere and——"

"Start all over again," Connemara finished for him. "Yes, for an impulsive act, it was very well thought out. Well, let's see how it works."

Sometimes the beach became very rocky, and then Lacy would turn to help her. At times she accepted his assistance and at others would draw herself up haughtily and wait for him to walk on. By the time they had reached their journey's end she would gladly have allowed him to carry her.

Lacy's house was one of those old-fashioned houses which have been remodelled, and about which one is supposed to keep saying "How quaint!" Connemara eventually ran out of "How quaints." Yet it really was a picture, set in a little grove of pines which must have helped to make it nice and damp at times, but provided a charming background. However, pictures meant nothing to Connemara at this time, and Lacy was sensible enough to realize the fact.

"The first thing you'll want is a change of clothes and then a piping hot breakfast, and there, waiting for us, is the person who can furnish them both."

(To be continued)

By virtue of an execution and fee bill issued out of the Circuit Court of Lee County, Illinois, on the 20th day of November, A. D., 1925, at the instance of the First National Bank, Sterling, plaintiff, and against Rock Falls Manufacturing Company and E. Galt Brookfield, defendants, I have this 25th day or November, A. D. 1925, levied on all the right, title, interest and claim of E. Galt Brookfield in and to the following described real estate, to-wit:

All that part of the Northwest quarter of Section 31 lying west of land sold to James Hawley and described in book "C" of deeds, page 29, more particularly described by metes and bounds as follows to-wit: Commencing on the county line between the counties of Whiteside and Lee at the Southwest corner of said Northwest quarter of Section 31; thence east 12.70 chains; thence north to the north line of said Northwest quarter; thence west 12.70 chains to the west line of said quarter section; thence south to the place of beginning, containing 50 acres, more or less; and the west half of the west half of the Southwest quarter of said Section 31 in Township 21 North, Range 8 east of the 4th P. M., Lee County, Illinois.

And I hereby give notice that by virtue of the power in me vested by the said execution and fee bill, I shall, on Wednesday the 23rd day of December, A. D. 1925, at 2 o'clock P. M., offer for sale at the north door of the Court House in Dixon, in said county, the above described real estate to satisfy the said execution and fee bill.

Dated at Dixon, Lee County, Illinois, this 25th day of November, A. D. 1925.

Too Much Efficiency

By E. J. Rath

(c) W. J. Watt and Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN W. BROOKE, widower and father of three grown children, Constance, Billy and Alice, has been away for several weeks since arranging with a firm of efficiency experts to manage his home. He returns unexpectedly to find his Fifth Avenue mansion ablaze with lights, strange servants in attendance and strange guests celebrating the engagement of Constance to H. Hedge, the man who is supposed to be running the household on an economic basis.

He tells the butler at the door that he is the owner of the place and is held captive pending the arrival of the police.

Hedge, who has never met Brooke, tells Constance about the incident at the door, and from a description by Hedge she assures him that the supposed lunatic is undoubtedly her father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THIS was his day of reckoning; this the hour for him to render an account of his stewardship. He made a swift survey of the revelers about him and of the glories that had been achieved by dollars. Then, setting his shoulders stiffly, he followed Constance into the hall. He found her hugging the lunatic.

"What in Sam Hill has struck this place?" demanded John W. Brooke, after submitting to the enthusiastic salutations of his daughter. "Who are these servants here? What do they mean by throwing me out of my house?"

"They didn't know you, father," said Constance soothingly.

"But what are they doing here? And who are all these people?"

"We're giving a party, father dear."

"A party! What for?"

"Why—just for fun," faltered Constance.

Mr. Brooke surveyed the unexampled richness of his environment and fastened a steely blue glance upon his daughter.

"So, it's a party, is it? That's a fine way to welcome your father home—lugging several hundred people into my house with a strange gang of servants!"

"But, father, dear, we didn't expect you. Not for ever so long. You see, it's nowhere near the 19th of February. It's only a little after New Year's."

Constance was infinitely more nervous than was her wont, even with John W. Brooke in a tantrum.

"So!" he barked. "Just because I come home unexpectedly I catch you at it, do I? And you call this a party! I call it a riot."

Constance cast a nervous glance at H. Hedge, who was a pace in the background.

"Do you know what they did to me?" demanded Mr. Brooke. "They led me into the library, before I knew what was happening, and some flossy little pony in a pink dress tried to get me to dance. Me! And when I told them I was boss here they sent for a couple of strong-arms and tried to pitch me out of my own house."

John W. Brooke, still garbed in hat and overcoat, paused, panting.

"Where's Alice?" he demanded. "In bed?"

Constance shook her head faintly. Alice was dancing somewhere, reveling in new-found liberty.

"Where's Bill?"

"Oh, he's around somewhere. Shall I call him?"

Mr. Brooke made a gesture of disgust.

"None of my children at the door to meet me," he declaimed angrily. "Nobody but a pack of strangers—and a party!"

"You're looking awfully well, father," said Constance soothingly. "You look younger."

"Cut it out!" he commanded peremptorily. "I've heard that stuff before. I don't look awfully well, and I'm not younger. Do you hear? I'm older, by several weeks. And I feel sick."

"Father!"

"Sick of all this tomfoolery, I mean. I came back, looking for a quiet life, and I might as well have butted into a Coney Island mardi gras."

H. Hedge stepped forward.

"Please consider that the party is in honor of your homecoming," he said. "A sort of house-warming."

John W. Brooke turned a baleful glare in the direction of the speaker. He placed his hands on his hips, spread his legs wide apart, and studied H. Hedge from head to feet.

"Engagement! You engaged?"

"Who in blazes are you?" he demanded.

"This is Mr. Hedge, father," said Constance hurriedly.

"Hedge? Why, that's the upstart who ordered these flunkies to throw me out!"

"Just a part of the surprise, Mr. Brooke," observed H. Hedge with a winning smile. "Of course we didn't really mean it, you know."

The smile was lost upon the owner of the mansion.

"Oh, you didn't mean it!" he echoed savagely. "Well, you wait till I get hold of the police and you'll find out whether I mean something. By jingo, there's a couple of cops now!"

Two men in uniform had entered the hall.

"Where's the nut?" asked the foremost. "Somebody 'phoned they had an old party with an empty attic."

H. Hedge stepped quickly forward and whispered to the officer.

"Escaped, eh?" said the policeman. "Which way did he go?"

"Ran north a block, and then around the corner," answered Hedge briskly. "You may get him if you hurry."

The two officers were retreating, when Mr. Brooke broke loose from his daughter's grasp and ran after them.

"Hey!" he cried. "If you're looking for a nut, here's one."

He pointed to H. Hedge.

"Lock him up!" he cried. "He tried to throw me out of my own house. Maybe he's a burglar, too."

Constance interceded hurriedly.

"Father! Now, don't make a scene about things. You don't understand at all. Send those officers away and then let me explain."

"I don't intend to have that man in my house one minute longer," stormed Mr. Brooke. "And I'm going to clear out the whole crowd, too."

"S-sh—father! Officers, please go away. I am Miss Brooke, and everything is all right. My father doesn't understand the situation yet."

"You bet I don't!"

"Come, father, we're going into the library to have a talk."

"The library's full of maniacs dancing," bellowed John W. Brooke.

"Then we'll go upstairs in your rooms. Come now, like a dear old daddy."

Mr. Brooke suffered himself to be led upstairs, and the policemen, at a peremptory sign from H. Hedge, departed.

The sitting-room of John W. Brooke presented a normal appearance to his eyes, but when he stepped into the bedroom he stopped short.

"Who owns those pants?" he demanded, pointing to a garment hanging over the back of a chair. "Not mine. Who owns those neckties? Those are not my hair-brushes. What the devil, Connie—"

Constance, who had been following, hesitated.

"And say, where's the man in charge of this house?" demanded her father, suddenly remembering.

"I'm the man," said the voice of H. Hedge, who had also followed upstairs. Brooke wheeled upon him with a bellow.

"You!"

"That is, I was until this morning. I sent in my resignation."

H. Hedge was calm and still smiling.

"You want me to understand that you're the man sent here by the Economy and Efficiency people?"

"There are my credentials. You signed them," said Hedge, placidly, exhibiting the document.

Mr. Brooke swallowed once or twice as he glared at the paper.

"And is this the way you've been running my house?"

"No; not the way I did run it. But, as I said, I quit running it this morning; that is, running it on that plan."

"Are you running this shindig downstairs?" inquired Mr. Brooke ominously.

"I was—for a time. But it's running itself very nicely now."

"He ran the house beautifully, father," said Constance nervously. "Truly."

H. Hedge grinned at her.

"Well, by the eternal!" exploded John W. Brooke. "I hired a man to run this house on the basis of economy, and I got a guarantee with it. And I come home to find myself insulted and thrown out, with a lot of strange servants on the place and my money being spent as if I was the government treasury. Where do I come in? What does it all mean? That's what I want to know. Who authorized this blowout?"

"Oh, I authorized it," said H. Hedge promptly. "And organized it. It's a sort of double-barreled affair, you see. On one hand, it's a surprise party for you, sir."

"And that's no lie!" boomed Mr. Brooke.

"On the other hand, it celebrates the announcement of your daughter's engagement."

John W. Brooke turned purple and whirled upon his daughter.

"Engagement! You engaged?"

Constnace nodded and blushed.

"Who in blazes to?"

"Me," answered H. Hedge.

"Well, I'll be—"

Mr. Brooke finished the sentence in a fit of choking that alarmed his daughter.

"Engaged," he repeated dully, after he had recovered speech. "My daughter engaged—and to this thing here. Say, let's all go down to Bellevue and have our heads examined. Engaged, hey? Well, you're hereby disengaged; and as for you, young man, if you're not out of this house in thirty seconds you'll be disembodied."

NEXT CHAPTER: Hedge talks himself into a job.

Good Thoughts for Good People

O Lord, how great are thy works! and thy thoughts are very deep. How precious also are thy thoughts unto me. O God! how great is the sum of them! Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me, and know my thoughts.
Psalms.

If we are to maintain and perfect our own civilization, if we are to be of any benefit to the rest of mankind, we must turn aside from the thoughts of destruction and cultivate the thoughts of construction.
Calvin Coolidge.

Truth never turns to rebuke falsehood; her own straightforwardness is the severest correction.
Thoreau.

Thought is parent of the deed.
Carlyle.

Thought is the property of him who can entertain it, and of him who can adequately place it.
Emerson.

He that sent me is true: and I speak to the world those things which I have heard of him.
Christ Jesus.

Protection from sinful thoughts is gained by admitting the allness of God, good, and seeing man as His image and likeness with completeness and perfect ability in good or Godlike thoughts, which express right activity. There is nothing in a mentality filled with good thoughts to be conscious of, or to respond to, evil suggestions; so evil becomes nothing.

Did You Ever Stop to Think—

BY
E. R. Waite, Secretary,
Shawnee, Okla. Board of Commerce

THAT some cities seem to need to get their collective affairs into the hands of some men who are competent and capable of handling them.

THAT it is a foolish community that will allow any factional differences to permanently disintegrate its citizenship.

THAT foolishness should be stopped.

THAT every citizen should remember his duty to his home city and realize the no matter what their opinions are, there is no use of carrying on hostilities forever.

THAT they should get together, get down to business and BUILD THE HOME CITY.

THAT the men who think they can't do a thing are usually right.

THAT the men who make up their minds to do things usually can do it.

THAT the hardest work some men do is figuring how to keep from working.

MEN WHO CAN DO THINGS SHOULD REALIZE THAT CO-OPERATION MEANS TEAM-WORK—GET TOGETHER!

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Labor is Strong for Public Ownership of Utilities of Nation

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Organized labor is "strongly in favor of public ownership," Dennis McCarthy, secretary of the Joint Labor Legislative board of Illinois told the Illinois Power conference here today.

"Although many labor organizations, Mr. McCarthy said, "have not made official statements of policy on the question of public organized ownership and operation of power producing and distribution systems.

"No better proof of this is needed than the recent election in San Francisco where labor voted almost solidly for those candidates pledged for a municipal electrical distribution system. The workers of San Francisco saw the issue clearly and refused to sanction the sale of current produced in their own Hetchy-Hetchy plant to a company which would re-sell it to them at four times the price paid to the city for the power.

"But this is only one case. Everywhere that honest attempt have been made to establish public power plants, labor has stood with those forward-looking men backing the projects through those first hard years when every obstacle was thrown in the way of the public plants by the private power companies. The reward has come in the form of lowered rates and better service.

"Labor is vitally interested in cheap power, as the vast majority of consumers of electric power work for wages. The experiments of past years and the present successful operation of government power plants in many cities shown that public power means cheaper power.

"The issue of public power against private power will of course arise locally, but I predict that whenever the advocates of public power can show labor that the successes in public power can be duplicated in the particular state or city where the issue comes up, labor will get in the fight with them. For after all, it is labor's fight, as labor is the greatest consumer of power."

Is Today Your Birth Anniversary?

If so, you are self confident.
You know yourself.
You believe in your abilities.
You have a keen mind.
And sound judgment.
You are a hard worker.
And a harder taskmaster.
You dislike shirkers.
And lose patience with them.
You inspire confidence.
You are qualified to train others.
You have high ambitions.
And will lead a successful life.
